Reddy, 1995-12-12 Since ocular therapeutics and drug delivery is a subject of interest to specialists from various disciplines such as chemical biochemical medical pharmaceutical and toxicological it truly presents a unique situation requiring a multi disciplinary approach in understanding and addressing various problems Yet we see that scientists associated with these areas are working by and large independently of one another thus limiting dissemination of knowledge experience and ideas that would greatly enhance the overall progress in this area of research Regrettably the information currently available in ocular therapeutics and drug delivery though extensive is still fragmented into various disciplines making meaningful synthesis difficult Several books are available that cover one or two aspects of the multi disciplinary fields on an individual basis however none is available that covers all of them The chapters contained in this book are specific to various interrelated areas of ocular therapeutics and drug delivery and are written by acknowledged experts from both academia and industry The book itself is divided into five parts namely I overview basic principles and methodology II pathopharmacology and clinical applications III chemical biochemical approaches to ocular drug delivery IV formulation and drug delivery considerations and V industrial and regulatory considerations Individual chapters in each section apart from presenting a concise text entail an extensive listing of references

Pharmacology of the Eye M.L. Sears,2012-12-06

Roots of the theory and practice of ocular pharmacology may be traced to the ancient Mesopotamian code of Hammurabi and then to several papyri reflecting the clinical interests of the Egyptians The evolution of its art and science was irregularly paced until the nineteenth century when Kohler in 1884 proved the anesthetic effect of cocaine on the cornea and when Fraser Laquer Schmiedeberg Meyer and others studied the pharmacology of the autonomic nervous system by way of observations of the pupil Advances in the past few decades have been nothing short of explosive How can the student physician or basic research scientist stay in touch with these electrifying studies To help with the answer to this question the authors set as their goal the development of increased understanding so that the student research scientist and ophthalmologist can cope with the latest discoveries The authors want to narrow what appears to be an ever increasing gap between basic science and ophthalmology The basic aspects of pharmacology have been presented in light of the natural physiology In this regard while distinctions among endogenous mechanisms drug effects and the pathogenesis of disease are to be separately recognized appreciation must be given to the concept that both the desirable and unwanted manifestations or functions caused by either disease or drugs must very often represent a quantitative change in normal metabolic pathways
