Wolfgang Iser Ben De Bruyn, 2012-05-29 Although Wolfgang Iser is one of the most influential literary theorists of the twentieth century there is no authoritative study about his oeuvre The present work remedies that problem by analysing Iser's German and English writings in detail Apart from being the first comprehensive account of his work this study also modifies the established view of Iser's theory In contrast to the idea that his only contribution to literary studies is the reception theory of the 1970s this account demonstrates the importance of Iser's work on history and anthropology from the 1950s and 1990s Instead of exclusively focusing on familiar terms such as indeterminacy this analysis also discusses Iser's view of modernity fiction and culture As this discussion shows his writings develop a consistent theory of the novel and the way in which it allows its readers to articulate new views of reality To situate this theory Iser's institutional and intellectual background is described as well paying special attention to the Poetik und Hermeneutik circle and thinkers like Blumenberg and Kermode The continued relevance of his theory is demonstrated via comparisons with recent research on the novel and memory as well as examples from contemporary novelists like Juli Zeh and Hilary Mantel The Act of Reading Wolfgang Iser, 1980-02 By defining what happens during the act of reading that is how aesthetic experience is initiated develops and functions Iser's book provides the first systematic framework for assessing the communicatory function of a literary text within the context from which it arises It is an important work that will appeal to those interested in the reading process

The Deception of the Reader in "The French Lieutenant's Woman" by John Fowles Alexandra Baum, 2014-12-18 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2.7 University of Freiburg Anglistik Amerikanistik language English abstract John Fowles is a postmodern writer who was born March 31 1926 in Leigh on Sea and who died in Lyme Regis England in 2005 He was greatly inspired by the works of the French existentialists Albert Camus and Jean Paul Sartre which is often mirrored in his narrations Fowles is one of the most well known authors of Postwar British Fiction and has published his famous book a pastiche of the Victorian novel The French Lieutenant's Woman which has won several awards in 1969 Due to its popularity the book has been made into a movie starring Meryl Streep and Jeremy Irons in 1981 The novel takes place in Lyme Regis England during the Victorian era in 1867 and is about the young gentleman Charles Smithson who already engaged to a successful haberdasher's daughter falls in love with Sarah Woodruff who is disdained by the society of Lyme Regis for her alleged affair with a French lieutenant John Fowles uses a postmodern narrator to tell a story that visibly has a very conventional Victorian framework This narrator presents the love story of Charles and Sarah through a mixture of plot and personal comments by playing with the features of postmodern literature in order to deceive the reader and to challenge him into finding his own reality in the narration The way the story is told shows a great interplay between the information the narrator gives to the reader and the information that is left out in order to mislead him This technique therefore raises the question of how the reader is to understand the wholeness of John Fowles's novel when he is deceived throughout its plot In this paper I am going to answer the question of how the reader is to understand the meaning of the book first by giving a brief overview on Wolfgang Iser's reader response theory and its importance in the reading experience of The French Lieutenant's Woman and second by analyzing the different appearances of the narrator by using postmodern features like the creation of suspense deception and illusion that Fowles used to manipulate the reader

The Nature and Demands of the Sovereign Rule of God in the Gospel of Matthew Margaret Hannan, 2006-06-15 This work argues that the author of the Gospel of Matthew structures his work as a Bios or biography of Jesus so as to encapsulate in narrative form the essence of his theological understanding of God's Basileia sovereign rule as proclaimed and taught in the teaching and healing mission of Jesus Evidence for this is found in Matthew's careful use of structural markers to divide his story of Jesus into significant thematic sub sections in which he uses a series of Basileia logia at incisive points to highlight aspects of Jesus teaching and healing mission In this way Matthew is able to portray Jesus as God's promised Messiah who instructs his disciples through discourse and narrative hence in word and example in the nature and demands of God's sovereign rule By structuring his Gospel as a story Matthew depicts Jesus giving instructions to his disciples and also instructs the readers of the text Hence Matthew's Gospel becomes a manual of instruction on the nature and demands of God's sovereignty Its purpose is to ensure that not only the members of the Matthean community but all future disciples of Jesus are competently trained to carry out Jesus commission Go therefore and disciple all the nations 28 19 20 In this way the good news of God's saving presence is proclaimed to all the nations until God's eschatological reign is finally established

How Do I Know Thee? Richard E. Goodkin, 2015-06-22 The classical period in France presents a particularly lively battleground for the transition between oral visual culture on the one hand and print culture on the other The former depended on learning from sources of knowledge directly in their presence in a manner analogous to theatrical experience The latter became characterized by the distance and abstraction of reading How Do I Know Thee explores the ways in which literature philosophy and psychology approach social cognition or how we come to know others Richard E Goodkin describes a central opposition between what he calls theatrical cognition and narrative cognition drawing both on scholarship on literary genre and mode and also on the work of a number of philosophers and psychologists in particular Descartes's theory of cognition Freudian psychoanalysis mid twentieth century behaviorism and the field of cognitive science The result is a study that will be of interest not only to students of the classical period but also to those in the corresponding disciplines

Borders and Border Crossings in the Contemporary British Short Story

Barbara Korte, Laura Ma Lojo-Rodríguez, 2020-01-02 This book represents a contribution to both border studies and short story studies In today's world there is ample evidence of the return of borders worldwide as material reality as a concept and as a way of thinking This collection of critical essays focuses on the ways in which the contemporary British short story mirrors questions and engages with border issues in national and individual life At the same time the concept of the border as well as neighbouring notions of liminality and intersectionality is used to illuminate the short story's unique aesthetic potential The first section Geopolitics and Grievable Lives includes chapters that address the various ways in which contemporary stories engage with our newly bordered world and borders within contemporary Britain The second section examines how British short stories engage with Ethnicity and Liminal Identities while the third Animal Encounters and Metamorphic Bodies focuses on stories concerned with epistemological borders and borderlands of existence and identity Taken together the chapters in this volume demonstrate the varied and complex ways in which British short stories in the twenty first century engage with the concept of the border
