One of the biggest challenges with eyewitness testimony is that memory is highly fallible. People often remember events differently than they actually occurred, and memories can be influenced by a variety of factors, including stress, emotion, and suggestion. For example, if a witness is asked leading questions or given information about a crime before they testify, it can affect their memory of the event and make their testimony less reliable.

Despite these challenges, eyewitness testimony can still be a valuable tool in forensic investigations. When used properly, it can provide important details about a crime that may not be available through other means. For example, a witness may be able to describe the appearance of a suspect, the make and model of a vehicle involved in a crime, or the location and time of an incident.

To ensure that eyewitness testimony is as reliable as possible, forensic investigators must
