Traceability in the Food Supply Chain Daniel R. Levinson, 2010-10 Beginning in 2005 the FDA required certain food facilities to maintain records identifying the sources recipients and transporters of food products This will allow the FDA to trace an article of food through each stage of the food supply chain from a retail shelf back to a farm if FDA has a reasonable belief that a food product presents a serious health threat Traceability is the ability to follow the movement of a food product through the stages of production processing and distribution This study is based on two primary data sources 1 a traceability exercise of 40 selected food products and 2 structured interviews with the managers at the food facilities that handled the selected food products Illustrations
