Bringing Finance to Pakistan's Poor Tatiana Nenova,Cecile Thioro Niang,Anjum Ahmad,2009-11-13 Although access to financing in Pakistan is expanding quickly it is two to four times lower than regional benchmarks Half of Pakistani adults mostly women do not engage with the financial system at all and only 14 percent have access to formal services Credit for small and medium size enterprises is rationed by the financial system The formal microfinance sector reaches less than 2 percent of the poor as opposed to more than 25 percent in neighboring countries Yet it is the micro and small businesses along with remittances that help families escape the poverty trap and participate in the economy Bringing Finance to Pakistan s Poor is based on a pioneering and comprehensive survey and dataset that measures the access to financial products by Pakistani households The survey included 10 305 households in all areas of the country excluding the tribal regions The accompanying CD contains summary statistics The authors develop a picture of access to and usage of financial services across the country and across different population groups and they identify policy and regulatory priorities Reform measures in Pakistan have been timely but alone are not enough financial institutions have lagged behind in adopting technology segmenting customer bases diversifying products and simplifying processes and procedures Gender bias and low levels of financial literacy remain barriers as is geographical remoteness However the single strongest cause of low financial access is lack of income not location education or even gender Bringing Finance to Pakistan s Poor will be of great interest to readers working in the areas of business and finance economic policy gender and rural development and microfinance von Vacano,Gavin Brent Sullivan,Johana E. Prawitasari-Hadiyono,2013-11-21 This book offers a broad theoretical foundation by relating and contrasting relevant international literature with the outcomes of a particular research project It provides a critical reevaluation of the complex phenomena of coping with disasters on a general level by applying this integrative theory of disaster coping to a specific context A cultural psychological model is developed in order to suggest ways of understanding and assessing local and cultural specificity This interaction of the general and locally specific is central to our understanding of cultural psychology of coping with disaster The book provides a basic overview by presenting various approaches to coping with natural disasters and relating them to each other in a coherent manner So far most research approaches either focus on technical social psychological or cultural aspects of coping neglecting their interconnectedness Coping is seldom seen as an extensive long term process in which disaster relief complexly interacts and is integrated with the local actors and conditions Until now a perspective is missing in which the mentioned modes of coping are integrated with cultural interpretations and practices and long standing forms of communal self help which possibly develop in places that are frequently threatened by natural disasters
