Re-thinking the Political Economy of Immigration Control Lea Sitkin, 2019-10-08 This book offers a systematic exploration of the changing politics around immigration and the impact of resultant policy regimes on immigrant communities It does so across a uniquely wide range of policy areas immigration admissions citizenship internal immigration controls labour market regulation the welfare state and the criminal justice system Challenging the current state of theoretical literature on the criminalisation or marginalisation of immigrants this book examines the ways in which immigrants are treated differently in different national contexts as well as the institutional factors driving this variation To this end it offers data on overall trends across 20 high income countries as well as more detailed case studies on the UK Australia the USA Germany Italy and Sweden At the same time it charts an emerging common regime of exploitation which threatens the depiction of some countries as more inclusionary than others The politicisation of immigration has intensified the challenge for policy makers who today must respond to populist calls for restrictive immigration policy whilst simultaneously heeding business groups calls for cheap labour and respecting legal obligations that require more liberal and welcoming policy regimes The resultant policy regimes often have counterproductive effects in many cases marginalising immigrant communities and contributing to the growth of underground and criminal economies Finally developments on the horizon driven by technological progress threaten to intensify distributional challenges While these will make the politics around immigration even more fraught in coming decades the real issue is not immigration but the loss of good jobs which will have serious implications across all Western countries This book will appeal to scholars and students of criminology social policy political economy political sociology the sociology of immigration and race and migration studies Economica ,1988 The British Library General Catalogue of Printed Books, 1986 to 1987 British Library,1988 Southern Economic Journal ,1987 Contains section Book reviews New Perspectives on India-Nepal Relations Kalim Bahadur,Mahendra P.
