Atomic Scientists , 1988-06 The Militarization of Space Paul B. Stares, 1985 From the front jacket flap Contrary to widespread expectations in the wake of Sputnik outer space did not immediately become a new arena for a superpower arms competition Although the United States and the Soviet Union began to use space extensively for military purposes both exhibited relatively little interest in the development of space weaponry By the beginning of the 1980s however an arms race in space seemed inevitable Now both the United States and the Soviet Union have developed the means to disable satellites and are now also considering the deployment of ballistic missile defenses in space Why were these weapons never extensively developed earlier What changed in the late 1970s to reverse the predominant trend in the militarization of space

What are the lessons for arms control and for Soviet American relations in general Paul Stares addresses these fundamental questions by examining the factors that have shaped United States policy towards the military use of space and in particular the development of antisatellite weapons States relies heavily on declassified documents found in Presidential libraries and made available under the Freedom of Information Act and he obtained additional information from a comprehensive series of interview with former members of the U S government and armed services By judicious use of this material he provides the first detailed account of United States space weapons policy and programs An invaluable source of information for defense analysts and scholars of international relations The Militarization of Space is essential reading for anyone wishing to understand present United States military space policy and its implications for the future Great Power Politics and the

and International Relations      The Oxford Handbook of Space Security Saadia M. Pekkanen, P. J. Blount, 2024 The Oxford Handbook of Space Security focuses on the interaction between space technology and international and national security processes Saadia M Pekkanen and P J Blount have gathered a group of key scholars who bring a range of analytical and theoretical perspectives to take an analytically eclectic approach to assessing space security from an international relations IR theory perspective Bringing together scholarship from a group of leading experts this volume explains how these contemporary changes will affect future security in from and through space      The Wrong War Rosemary Foot, 2019-06-30 In 1951 General Omar Bradley declared publicly that war with China would involve the United States in the wrong war at the wrong place at the wrong time and with the wrong enemy Despite the stated intent of the U S to keep the Korean conflict from spreading the debate on extending the war was far more intense and protracted than previous accounts of this period have suggested Concentrating on the debate over expansion Rosemary Foot reveals the strains it caused both within the U S bureaucracy and between America and its North Atlantic allies She supplies important new information on the U S government s appraisal of Sino Soviet relations between 1950 and 1953 and makes clear that a high proportion of U S officials came to recognize the limited nature of Soviet support for China Explaining why the Eisenhower administration nearly unleashed nuclear weapons on China in the spring of 1953 Foot demonstrates that the Korean war would very likely have grown into a conflict of major proportions if the Chinese and North Koreans had not conceded the final issue of the truce talks the question of the voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war      History of the Office of the Secretary of Defense Alfred Goldberg, Steven L. Rearden, 1984      Liddell Hart and the Weight of History John J. Mearsheimer, 1988 This troubling book offers a striking illustration of how history can be used and abused how a gifted individual can create their own self serving version of the past      The Meaning of the Nuclear Revolution Robert Jervis, 1989 A comprehensive analysis that thrusts Jervis into the front ranks of nuclear essayists Kirkus Reviews Robert Jervis argues here that the possibility of nuclear war has created a revolution in military strategy and international relations He examines how the potential for nuclear Armageddon has changed the meaning of war the psychology of statesmanship and the formulation of military policy by the superpowers      Conventional Deterrence John J. Mearsheimer, 1985-08-21 Conventional Deterrence is a book about the origins of war Why do nations faced with the prospect of large scale conventional war opt for or against an offensive strategy John J Mearsheimer examines a number of crises that led to major conventional wars to explain why deterrence failed He focuses first on Allied and German decision making in the years 1939 1940 analyzing why the Allies did not strike first against Germany after declaring war and conversely why the Germans did attack the West Turning to the Middle East he examines the differences in Israeli and Egyptian strategic doctrines prior to the start of the major conventional conflicts in that region Mearsheimer then critically assays the relative strengths and weaknesses of NATO and the Warsaw Pact to determine the prospects for conventional deterrence in any future crisis He is also concerned with examining such relatively technical issues as the impact of precision guided munitions PGM on conventional deterrence and the debate over maneuver versus attrition warfare Mearsheimer pays considerable attention to questions of military strategy and tactics Challenging the claim that conventional deterrence is largely a function of the numerical balance of forces he also takes issue with the school of thought that ascribes deterrence failures to the dominance of offensive weaponry In addition to examining the military consideration underlying deterrence he also analyzes the interaction between those military factors and the broader political considerations that move a nation to war Military Organizations, Complex Machines Chris C.

Demchak,2018-10-18 Chris Demchak explores the reasons why military machines surprise their users and how they can change both the complexity and effectiveness of tactical organizations She uses the Army s experiences with its M1 Abrams tank as well as other examples to explain the interaction of complex technology and militaries that seek to control uncertainty Under some conditions Demchak demonstrates complexity in critical machines induces increased complexity in the organizations that use them and can produce an army different from the one that was intended Drawing on organization theory and her data she argues that understanding this interaction will heavily influence whether armed forces reductions savings and modernization produce rapid successful military organizations or lethally unpredictable ones The Nuclear Future Michael Mandelbaum,2019-05-15 While specifically defining many of the technical terms that have made this subject so inaccessible Michael Mandelbaum discusses the weapons systems and nuclear doctrine of both the United States and the Soviet Union along with their predicted impact on the future of the arms race Routledge Handbook of International Cybersecurity Eneken Tikk,Mika Kerttunen,2020-01-28 The Routledge Handbook of International Cybersecurity examines the development and use of information and communication technologies ICTs from the perspective of international peace and security Acknowledging that the very notion of peace and security has become more complex the volume seeks to determine which questions of cybersecurity are indeed of relevance for international peace and security and which while requiring international attention are simply issues of contemporary governance or development The Handbook offers a variety of thematic regional and disciplinary perspectives on the question of international cybersecurity and the chapters contextualize cybersecurity in the broader contestation over the world order international law conflict human rights governance and development The volume is split into four thematic sections Concepts and frameworks Challenges to secure and peaceful cyberspace National and regional perspectives on cybersecurity Global approaches to cybersecurity This book will be of much interest to students of cybersecurity computer science sociology international law defence studies and International Relations in general Chapter 30 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Richard Ned Lebow spells out the implications of historical experience for American perceptions of the place of crisis management in superpower strategic relations identifying and discussing three reasons for the outbreak of World War I preemption loss of control and miscalculated escalation he argues that all three are equally serious threats to peace and survival He documents how psychological stress in past crises has induced erratic dysfunctional behavior from national leaders even paralysis A nuclear crisis he argues would generate even more acute stress because of the unprecedented destructiveness of nuclear weapons and the extreme time pressure that leaders are likely to face

Innovation and the Arms Race Matthew Evangelista, 2023-08-15 Innovation and the Arms Race investigates the causes and mechanisms of the technological arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union Challenging the commonly held notion that Soviet weapons innovation processes simply mirror those of the United States Matthew Evangelista shows that the United States usually leads in introducing new military technology while the Soviets typically react to American initiatives Evangelista bases his study of pivotal nuclear weapons development decisions on a variety of US and USSR primary sources including the memoirs of weapons designers and scientists declassified intelligence analyses Soviet Academy of Science documents and Nikita Khrushchev's taped reminiscences He finds that in the United States impetus for innovation comes from the bottom at the initiative of corporate or government researchers and military officials whereas the centralized Soviet system produces innovations from the top in response to foreign developments A revelatory analysis of US military policy Soviet American relations and weaponry development Innovation and the Arms Race bears lessons for the study of great power competition and military innovation today
