Learning Theory, Instructional Theory, and Psychoeducational Design Glenn E. Snelbecker, 1985-06-28 Snelbecker displays a deep concern which I share about the need to develop ways to build theories and conceptualizations from the study and practice of teaching His excellent work is an attempt to relate learning theories instructional theories and psychoeducational design to one another The field of learning and instruction needs this kind of book and others like it to communicate the practical value and the limitations of its theories and to comment upon the current state of the field Snelbecker s book is aptly timed The American Journal of Psychology Granville Stanley Hall, Edward Bradford Titchener, Karl M. work of the French phenomenologist Maurice Merleau Ponty a phenomenological theory of psychosomatics is worked out as an alternative to traditional biomedical thinking The patient who presents somatic symptoms with no clearly discernible lesion or dysfunction presents a problem to the traditional health care system These symptoms are medically unexplainable constituting an anomaly for the materialistic understanding of ill health that underlies the practice of modern medicine The traditional biomedical model is not appropriate for understanding a number of health issues that we call psychosomatic and for this reason biomedical theory and practice must be complemented by another theoretical understanding in order to adequately grasp the psychosomatic problematic This book establishes a complementary understanding of psychosomatic ill health in terms of a non reductionistic model allowing for the psychosomatic expression of the lived body A thorough presentation of the work Merleau Ponty is followed by the author s application of his thinking to the phenomenon of psychosomatic pathology
