The Political Economy Of Participatory Economics:

The Political Economy of Participatory Economics Michael Albert, Robin Hahnel, 1991-04-09 With the near bankruptcy of centrally planned economies now apparent and with capitalism seemingly incapable of generating egalitarian outcomes in the first world and economic development in the third world alternative approaches to managing economic affairs are an urgent necessity Until now however descriptions of alternatives have been unconvincing Here Michael Albert and Robin Hahnel support the libertarian socialist tradition by presenting a rigorous well defined model of how producers and consumers could democratically plan their interconnected activities After explaining why hierarchical production inequality consumption central planning and market allocations are incompatible with classlessness the authors present an alternative model of democratic workers and consumers councils operating in a decentralized social planning procedure They show how egalitarian consumption and job complexes in which all engage in conceptual as well as executionary labor can be efficient They demonstrate the ability of their planning procedure to yield equitable and efficient outcomes even in the context of externalities and public goods and its power to stimulate rather than subvert participatory impulses Also included is a discussion of information management and how simulation experiments can substantiate the feasibility of their model

The Political Economy of Globalization Satya Dev Gupta,2012-12-06 Globalization is transforming the world at an accelerated pace Integration of the world continues widening and intensifying international linkages in economic political and social relations Liberalization of trade and fmance lubricated by revolutionary changes in information technology has resulted in significant economic growth at the global level On the other hand the process of globalization is changing the nature of production relations threatening the traditional roles of the nation state and carrying with it far reaching implications for sustainable growth development and the environment Although both developed and developing countries are actively participating in this saga of globalization nearly ninety countries as the United Nations Human Development Report 1996 indicates are worse off economically than they were ten years ago leading to global polarization between haves and have nots The report further indicates that the gap between the per capita incomes of the industrialized world and the developing countries far from narrowing has more than tripled during the last thirty years Further a majority of the countries benefitting from this globalization drive have seen a rise in inequality and poverty This failure of market driven globalization to reward the benefits equitably led the United Nations to proclaim 1996 as the International Year for the Eradication of Poverty IYEP and the decade of 1997 2006 as the international decade for the eradication of poverty and to promote people centered sustainable development
