The Metamorphosis An Autobiography Of A Transform:

To Be a Revolutionary J. Guadalupe Carney, 1987 Autobiography and Natural Science in the Age of Romanticism

Bernhard Kuhn, 2016-04-15 Set against the backdrop of a rapidly fissuring disciplinary landscape where poetry and science are increasingly viewed as irreconcilable and unrelated Bernhard Kuhn's study uncovers a previously ignored fundamental connection between autobiography and the natural sciences Examining the autobiographies and scientific writings of Rousseau Goethe and Thoreau as representative of their ages Kuhn challenges the now entrenched thesis of the two cultures Rather these three writers are exemplary in that their autobiographical and scientific writings may be read not as separate or even antithetical but as mutually constitutive projects that challenge the newly emerging boundaries between scientific and humanistic thought during the Romantic period Reading each writer's life stories and nature works side by side as they were written Kuhn reveals the scientific character of autobiographical writing while demonstrating the autobiographical nature of natural science He considers all three writers in the context of scientific developments in their own times as well as ours showing how each one marks a distinctive stage in the growing estrangement of the arts and sciences from the self-assured epistemic unity of Rousseau's time to the splintering of disciplines into competing ways of knowing under the pressures of specialization and professionalization during the late Romantic age of Thoreau His book thus traces an unfolding drama in which these writers and their contemporaries each situated in an intellectual landscape more fragmented than the last seek to keep together what modern culture is determined to break apart Strindberg and Autobiography Michael

Robinson, 2013-05-31 This is a book about Strindberg and about autobiographical writing about how a particular writer projects himself in language the problems this entails the subterfuges it engenders about how he finds and loses himself there It therefore attempts to place this central aspect of Strindberg's project upon a more nuanced and substantial footing than the familiar tradition of biographical criticism in Strindberg studies normally permits and does not restrict itself only to those works singled out by Strindberg as explicitly autobiographical Nor I should perhaps add does it concern itself in any detailed way with the laborious examination of the relative accuracy of the life Strindberg attributed to himself whether for example the description of his early years in The Son of a Servant as a time of fear and hunger is in fact belied by the evident plenitude in the way of food and drink as chronicled in his father's household accounts In any case the myth a writer generates about his own experience is as significant a fact as any other and a writer like Strindberg merely accentuates the way in which all of us live our lives as fictions in terms of the available narrative and plot structures structures that incorporate those personal symbolic landscapes which as Strindberg well knew are in large part unconsciously fostered by the prevailing doxa or mythologies I am aware however that the approach employed here remains partial Notwithstanding his achievement in other fields all of which including his scientific preoccupations deserve to be taken seriously Strindberg's major achievement remains his drama A consummate creator as well as player of roles the mosaic work of character which he elaborated in his theatrical projections is an essential complement to the life traced in his prose works and deserves to be studied as such. Moreover like Janine Chasseguet Smirgel in her analysis of Strindberg in Pour une psychanalyse de l'art et de la créativité Paris 1971. Je n'ai pas manqué toutefois d'être frappé par la pauvreté relative des thèmes des œuvres biographiques si on les compare à la richesse des laborations dont ces mêmes thèmes sont l'objet dans l'œuvre dramatique. Maybe the occasion to explore this elaborated wealth of drama will one day present itself.

The Rise of the Memoir Alex Zwerdling, 2016-11-24. The Rise of the Memoir traces the growth and extraordinarily wide appeal of the memoir. Its territory is private rather than public life: shame, guilt, and embarrassment, not the achievements celebrated in the public record. What accounts for the sharp need writers like Rousseau, Woolf, Orwell, Nabokov, Primo Levi, and Maxine Hong Kingston felt to write and to publish such works when they might more easily have chosen to remain silent? Alex Zwerdling explores why each of these writers felt compelled to write them as that story can be reconstructed from personal materials available in archival collections: what internal conflicts they encountered while trying and how each of them resisted the private and public pressures to stop themselves rather than pursuing this confessional route against their own doubts without a reasonable expectation that such works would be welcome in print and eventually find an empathetic audience. Reconstructing this process in which a dubious project eventually becomes a compelling product, a memoir that will last, illuminates both what was at stake and why this serially invented open form has reshaped the expectations of readers who welcomed a vital alternative to the official story.

Transforming Kafka Patrick O'Neill, 2014-11-21. Lyrical, mysterious, and laden with symbolism, Franz Kafka's novels and stories have been translated into more than forty languages ranging from Icelandic to Japanese. In Transforming Kafka, Patrick O'Neill approaches these texts through the method he pioneered in Polyglot Joyce and Impossible Joyce, considering the many translations of each work as a single multilingual macrotext. Examining three novels, The Trial, The Castle, and America, and two short stories, The Judgment and The Metamorphosis, O'Neill offers comparative readings that consider both intertextual and intratextual themes. His innovative approach shows how comparing translations extends and expands the potential meanings of the text and reveals the subtle differences among the hundreds of translations of Kafka's work. A sophisticated analysis of the ways in which translation shapes, rearranges, and expands our understanding of literary works, Transforming Kafka is a unique approach to reading the works of a literary giant.

Autobiography and Memoirs George Douglas Campbell, Duke of Argyll, 1906. The Writer's Metamorphosis Kai Mikkonen, 1997.

The Autobiography of a Schizoid Personality Larry Polin, 2019-09-18. This is the remarkable story of an individual who experienced severe stress starting in the womb. Growing up in a highly dysfunctional family, he used intellectualization as a defense against overwhelming emotional pain. A high academic achiever, this young man was on the Dean's List at Brown University when he suffered a catastrophic neurological collapse. Labeled as schizophrenic, he was on the verge of death as his twentieth birthday approached. Starting to jog, he avoided his demise. Four years later, this individual found psychoanalyst Erich Fromm's The Sane Society while browsing in a bookstore. Unable to work or communicate normally with people, he began a long intellectual odyssey which ultimately involved the reading of thousands of books about American society. Miraculously transformed by a bodywork technique developed by Moshe Feldenkrais, he continued to live with severe stress due to his lack of social skills and the crazy-making institutions of an aggressive society. Nine years after relearning to use his body properly, this man discovered psychoanalyst Alice Miller's For Your Own Good: Hidden Cruelty in Child Rearing and The Roots of Violence. Reading many other books about child abuse and human development, he began to understand the reasons which had caused his ordeal. This engrossing story is a unique combination of memoir and academic study. People interested in psychology, education, human development, American culture, and social criticism will find much to ponder in it.

The Illusion of History Andrew R. Russ,2013 European radical political thought represented by Jean Jacques Rousseau Karl Marx and Michel Foucault has deeply impacted the Western intellectual tradition and political life These thinkers sought to transform Western societies by critiquing institutions that they felt led to oppression of groups They saw societies and institutions as part of a history that constantly develops and has no objective timeless purpose or principles They understood the history of things people do and of events that happen in a primarily evolutionary way As a result these radical political thinkers have often been thought to have a strong historical consciousness Andrew Russ argues in this book that a closer look at their philosophical underpinnings finds that Rousseau Marx and Foucault are much less historical in their methodology than is widely believed Instead they share a more timeless view one indebted to principles ordinarily seen as timeless or transcendent Russ finds that these thinkers are actually quite dependent on the philosopher who concluded the Enlightenment Immanuel Kant Russ s study shows how Kant s view of human freedom and subjectivity as timeless actually informs the work of the radical political position ABOUT THE AUTHOR Andrew R Russ is lecturer in European studies at the University of Adelaide

Transforming the Theological Turn Martin Koci,Jason Alvis,2020-10-14 Continental philosophers of religion have been engaging with theological issues concepts and questions for several decades blurring the borders between the domains of philosophy and theology Yet when Emmanuel Falque proclaims that both theologians and philosophers need not be afraid of crossing the Rubicon the point of no return between these often artificially separated disciplines he scandalised both camps Despite the scholarly reservations the theological turn in French phenomenology has decisively happened The challenge is now to interpret what this given fact of creative encounters between philosophy and theology means for these disciplines In this collection written by both theologians and philosophers the question Must we cross the Rubicon is central However rather than simply opposing or subscribing to Falque s position the individual chapters of this book interrogate and critically reflect on the relationship between theology and philosophy offering novel perspectives and redrawing the outlines of their borderlands
