National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, 1973 This report provides suggestions for overall improvement in delivery of police services for greater protection against crime The National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals considers the patrolman the primary force in reducing and preventing crime and thus directs its report recommendations toward increasing police effectiveness Suggestions for improvements in police functions are presented in the areas of community planning and organization technology and support services fiscal management and coordination with other criminal justice agencies These proposals appear in the form of more than 120 specific standards and recommendations that spell out where why and how these improvements can and should be made in the police segment of the criminal justice system Report on police is a reference work for the practitioner patrolman to police chief as well as for the interested layman Before implementing any of the changes advocated police departments are advised to detail the legal limits of police authority and develop guidelines for the exercise of that authority In order to improve cooperation between the police and the community it is suggested that police agencies establish a specialized unit for maintaining communication with citizens Each police department should encourage and participate in neighborhood security programs and establish procedures to facilitate processing of complaints Suggestions for more effective utilization of manpower include continued consolidation stricter personnel requirements increased employee benefits and the employment of more women minorities and civilians in police work Document Retrieval Index , 1972 Emergency Medical Services Communications System Technical Planning Guide United States. Task Force Report: The Police United States. President, 1967 Report on Police United States. National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, 1973 Symbolic Communication Peter K. Manning, 1988 This first major empirical work on the semiotics of social action goes a long way toward answering substantive theoretical and pragmatic questions on how codes actually operate in a specific social setting It underscores the important yet often ignored role of the police as sign or information workers Calls to the police represent a rich variety of human troubles concerns and needs by focusing on how police handle calls from the public how they ascertain what a call means and what should be done with it and how this is transformed through subsystems within the organization Peter Manning provides a novel way of looking at organizational communication Symbolic Communication provides examples of how members of an organization interpret their environment in this instance how the meaning of a call to the police is transformed as it moves across the boundaries of the organization a transformation that involves a series of codings and recodings ensuring a continuous loose linkage of organization and environment Manning shows why the police act in ways that differ from the way citizens and politicians would have them act revealing the uncertainties that surround a policy agency's responsiveness And he points out how today's computer technologies constrain the coding process limiting in particular the effectiveness of the 911 systems used in most of our major cities Peter K Manning is a Professor of Psychiatry and of Sociology at Michigan State University and a member of the Centre for Socio Legal Studies at Oxford Symbolic Communication brings to fruition themes and ideas introduced in his previous books Police Work and The Narc's Game Symbolic Communication is included in the Organization Studies series edited by John van Maanen California.
