The Martins David Foenkinos,2025-10-28 A wryly funny story about a struggling Parisian writer who finds the heroine of his next novel right outside his apartment Foenkinos is at his best in this playful novel Elle A charming clever book The Independent Is it true that every life is the stuff of novels Or are some people just too ordinary This is the question a struggling Parisian writer asks when he challenges himself to write about the first person he sees when he steps outside his apartment Secretly hoping to meet the beautiful woman who occasionally smokes on his street he instead sets eyes on octogenarian Madeleine She s happy to become the subject of his project but first she needs to put her shopping away Is it really true the writer wonders that every life is the stuff of novels or is his story doomed to be hopelessly banal As he gets to know Madeleine and her family he ll be privy to their secrets lost loves marital problems and workplace worries And he ll soon realise he is not the impartial bystander he intended to be but a catalyst for major changes in the lives of his characters Told with Foenkinos s characteristic irony and self deprecating humour yet filled with warmth The Martins is a compelling tale of the family next door which raises questions about what it means to be ordinary and about the blurred lines between truth and fiction Light yet profound it s another deeply charming story by this beloved French author A History of British

Baschiera,2020-05-28 Although film and media studies have widely engaged with the different aspects of social space domestic space in film has rarely been studied in its multiple dimensions Drawing on a broad range of theoretical disciplines and with case studies of directors such as Chantal Akerman Agnes Varda Claire Denis Todd Haynes Amos Gitai Martin Ritt John Ford Ila Beka and Louise Lemoine this book goes beyond the representational approach to the analysis of domestic space in cinema in order to look at it as a dispositif Adopting this innovative two fold approach that couples representation and dispositif the home is studied as an architecture as the place that embodies defines and perpetuates the family history as the milieu of gender and generational struggle as well as the first site where manifestations of power unfold All chapters contribute to explore unpack the complexities and expand on the richness encapsulated in the notion of domesticity and dwelling in its fascinating relation to moving images The Anglo-Irish Novel and the Big House Vera Kreilkamp,1998-10-01

This book is a comprehensive study of the ascendancy novel from Maria Edgeworth's Castle Rackrent (1800) through contemporary reinventions of the form. Kreilkamp argues that Irish fiction needs to be rescued from the critical assumptions underlying attacks on the historical mythologies of Yeats and the Literary Revival. Exploring the uniquely Irish dimensions of colonial and postcolonial societies, Kreilkamp charts the self-critical formulations of a gentry culture facing its extinction more often and more successfully with comic irony than nostalgia. Kreilkamp positions the Big House novels within current debates in postcolonial criticism and theory. She argues that these fictional representations of a beleaguered society provide a complex, nuanced gaze into a hybrid colonial group that distanced itself from the self-aggrandizements of the revivalists. As she examines the gothic revisionist and postmodern permutations of an enduring national form, she illustrates the ways ascendancy women transformed conventions of an English domestic genre into political fiction. Her attention to Edgeworth's Irish works, the fiction of the neglected Victorian novelist Charles Lever, and the gothic forms of the Big House by Sheridan Le Fanu and Charles Maturin provide a historical context for later reformulations of the genre by Somerville and Ross, Elizabeth Bowen, Molly Keane, William Trevor, Jennifer Johnston, Aidan Higgins, and John Banville.
