The Mind's Past Michael S. Gazzaniga, 1998-05-07 Why does the human brain insist on interpreting the world and constructing a narrative In this ground breaking work Michael S Gazzaniga one of the world's foremost cognitive neuroscientists shows how our mind and brain accomplish the amazing feat of constructing our past a process clearly fraught with errors of perception memory and judgment By showing that the specific systems built into our brain do their work automatically and largely outside of our conscious awareness Gazzaniga calls into question our everyday notions of self and reality The implications of his ideas reach deeply into the nature of perception and memory the profundity of human instinct and the ways we construct who we are and how we fit into the world around us Over the past thirty years the mind sciences have developed a picture not only of how our brains are built but also of what they were built to do The emerging picture is wonderfully clear and pointed underlining William James's notion that humans have far more instincts than other animals Every baby is born with circuits that compute information enabling it to function in the physical world Even what helps us to establish our understanding of social relations may have grown out of perceptual laws delivered to an infant's brain Indeed the ability to transmit culture an act that is only part of the human repertoire may stem from our many automatic and unique perceptual motor processes that give rise to mental capacities such as belief and culture Gazzaniga explains how the mind interprets data the brain has already processed making us the last to know He shows how what we see is frequently an illusion and not at all what our brain is perceiving False memories become a part of our experience autobiography is fiction In exploring how the brain enables the mind Gazzaniga points us toward one of the greatest mysteries of human evolution how we become who we are The Science of Man: a Bird's Eye View of the Wide and Fertile Field of Anthropology Charles BRAY (Ribbon Manufacturer.),1868 The Mind Illuminated Culadasa,Matthew Immergut, PhD,2017-01-03 The Mind Illuminated is a comprehensive accessible and above all effective book on meditation providing a nuts and bolts stage based system that helps all levels of meditators establish and deepen their practice Providing step by step guidance for every stage of the meditation path this uniquely comprehensive guide for a Western audience combines the wisdom from the teachings of the Buddha with the latest research in cognitive psychology and neuroscience Clear and friendly this in depth practice manual builds on the nine stage model of meditation originally articulated by the ancient Indian sage Asanga crystallizing the entire meditative journey into 10 clearly defined stages The book also introduces a new and fascinating model of how the mind works and uses illustrations and charts to help the reader work through each stage This manual is an essential read for the beginner to the seasoned veteran of meditation

Ching,Michael C. Haley,Ronald F. Lunsford,2014-01-10 Although linguistics is often a technical and increasingly abstruse discipline many linguists retain a concern for the way in which linguistics can shed light on literature and literary problems In their introductory chapter the editors of this collection of essays by linguists on either side of the Atlantic enunciate a bold stance that defines the theoretical relationship between linguistics and literature delimits what should be considered a linguistic analysis of literature and explains how such an analysis is related to current theories of readership and literary criticism The editors theory of the relationship between linguistic and literary studies stipulates an eclectic rather than a holistic approach and the essays they have gathered together reflect this belief The contributions include such varied approaches as transformational grammar text grammar and speech act theory and the topics analysed include many that are at the heart of literature such as topicalization imagery figurative language ambiguity and the play on words through puns The anthology as a whole illustrates how linguistic theory illuminates the very nature of literary language It also gives evidence of the new insights into literature that have arisen from a close analysis of the language in which the literature is encoded Bird's-eye view of practical and popular anthropological science ...
