

Existential Phenomenology

- Heidegger's (1962) thought that the relation of the individual to his lifeworld should be the focus of phenomenological inquiry
- Humans are embedded in their world to such an extent that subjective experiences are inextricably linked with social, cultural, and political contexts.
- Dasein is always projecting itself towards future possibilities- Existence as a verb
- Our present is shaped by our what happened in the past and what will happen in the future i.e. We are never temporally stagnant.
- Facticity of our existence- Physical, psychological and social factors, our historical situatedness, will all serve to limit our possibilities, Dasein can make of this facticity what it chooses.
- Mood- pre-reflective way of experiencing the world – in anguish, fear or guilt.
- Being-towards-death- Our experience always subject to an awareness of the finite nature of life and the end of our possibilities.
- Disruption to our everyday way of living – through bereavement, divorce or unemployment, for instance – we experience anguish (Angst) or anxiety
- Care-All being-in-the-world revolves around us being involved in the world, actively engaged in other things and people. (Things-in-the world)
- Mitsein- all experience is in relation to other people.
