The Martyrdom Of Father Campion And His Companions:

Father Edmund Campion & His Companions William Allen, 1908 The Construction of Martyrdom in the English Catholic Community, 1535-1603 Anne Dillon, 2017-03-02 Between 1535 and 1603 more than 200 English Catholics were executed by the State for treason Drawing on an extraordinary range of contemporary sources Anne Dillon examines the ways in which these executions were transformed into acts of martyrdom Utilizing the reports from the gallows the Catholic community in England and in exile created a wide range of manuscripts and texts in which they employed the concept of martyrdom for propaganda purposes in continental Europe and for shaping Catholic identity and encouraging recusancy at home Particularly potent was the derivation of images from these texts which provided visual means of conveying the symbol of the martyr Through an examination of the work of Richard Verstegan and the martyr murals of the English College in Rome the book explores the influence of these images on the Counter Reformation Church the Jesuits and the political intentions of English Catholics in exile and those of their hosts The Construction of Martyrdom in the English Catholic Community 1535 1603 shows how Verstegan used the English martyrs in his Theatrum crudelitatum of 1587 to rally support from Catholics on the Continent for a Spanish invasion of England to overthrow Elizabeth I and her government The English martyr was Anne Dillon argues as much a construction of international political rhetoric as it was of English religious and political debate an international Catholic banner around which Catholic European powers were urged to rally

Father Edmund Campion and His Companions William Cardinal Allen, Brother Hermenegild, 2013-05-03 The only explanation which it is perhaps fitting to make in introducing this interesting and classical work to the public would concern the length of time it has been permitted to lie unknown Every copy but one so far as I know has perished and that copy lies as it were lost neither referred to by historians nor mentioned by bibliographers under its distinguished author's name. The explanation is that it originally did its work so well that it would never have been wholly unknown and that in altered forms it is popular enough. It has been translated into Latin and Spanish and twice into Italian; it has also been abbreviated, remodelled and modernized. Its substance is therefore very well known for this little book is in effect the germ of all the martyrologies that have been written about the sufferers under Queen Elizabeth. A long chapter of bibliography would be needed to set forth all the variously modified forms under which the contents of this book have reached us. I shall return to this subject later but first a few words about the author. Of William Cardinal Allen it would be hard indeed to speak too highly. If we except Blessed Edmund Campion there was perhaps no one among the English Catholics of his day who can be placed higher. Amid all the miseries and sufferings of persecution and exile his co-religionists greeted him as our Moses, Pater Patrie, the man upon whom all depends though it was he who most of all insisted on their enduring those miseries without flinching. The explanation is given us by Campion's words below: "Neither shall this Church here ever fail so long as Priests and Pastors be found for the sheepe; rage man or devil never so much." It was indeed due to Campion that this assurance could be given for it was his glorious zeal which enkindled the spirit of martyrs throughout the whole Catholic community but it was not only due to Allen that Priests and Pastors were actually found for the sheepe but he had also been the first to foresee the way out of the difficulty. He had done so at the very moment when the fortunes of Catholicism seemed desperate and he had devoted life, fortune, influence everything to the building up of that seminary at Douay in which the Priests and Pastors were taught and ordained.

The English Catholic Refugees on the Continent 1558-1795 Peter Guilday, 1914 The Rambler, a Catholic journal of home and foreign literature [&c.]. A new look at the way in which medieval European literature depicts torture and brutality. An ugly subject but one that needs to be treated thoroughly and comprehensively with a discreet wit and no excessive relish. These needs are richly satisfied in Larissa Tracy's bold and important book.

DEREK PEARSALL, Professor Emeritus, Harvard University. Torture, that most notorious aspect of medieval culture and society, has evolved into a dominant mythology suggesting that the Middle Ages was a period during which sadistic torment was inflicted on citizens with impunity and without provocation, popular museums displaying such gruesome implements as the rack, the strappado, the gridiron, the wheel and the Iron Maiden can be found in many modern European cities. These lurid images of medieval torture have re-emerged within recent discussions on American foreign policy and the introduction of torture legislation as a weapon in the War on Terror and raised questions about its history and reality, particularly given its proliferation in some literary genres and its relative absence in others. This book challenges preconceived ideas about the prevalence of torture and judicial brutality in medieval society by arguing that their portrayal in literature is not mimetic. Instead it argues that the depictions of torture and brutality represent satire, critique and dissent; they have didactic and political functions in opposing the status quo. Torture and brutality are intertextual literary motifs that negotiate cultural anxieties of national identity by situating these practices outside their own boundaries in the realm of the barbarian Other. Medieval and early modern authors define themselves and their nations in opposition to them. Works examined range from Chaucer to the Scandinavian sagas to Shakespeare, enabling a true comparative approach to be taken. Larissa Tracy is Associate Professor, Longwood University.

Bonfire Songs Patrick Paul Macey, 1998. An underground tradition of sacred songs, Italian laude thrived in Italy during the sixteenth century. The texts of many were written by the condemned heretic Fra Girolamo Savonarola, who was burned at the stake in Florence in 1498. This study explores the religious and social functions of these laude during Savonarola's time in Florence. It also reconstructs music for laude written to venerate the friar after his death. Savonarola's meditations on Psalms 30 and 50 were also set to music as motets by some of the leading composers of the 16th century in a style of high art music remarkably distinct from the more popular tone of the lauda. These complex motets were often the result of networks of patronage at courts in Ferrara, France and England. The book includes a CD with a generous selection of performances of the music discussed.
