PRIMITIVE DIVERSITY

AND SUCCESS OF ALTERNATE IN

GEOLOGICAL TIMES.

BY D. D. DART.

There is a view generally entertained by naturalists and geologists that genera and species of animals and plants are gradually more numerous in the present age of the world than in any previous geological period. This seems to me an entire misapprehension of the character and diversity of the fossils which have been discovered in the different geological formations, and to rest upon premises which are not exactly within the scope of science, and which are almost unobtainable. Misconception is commonness of the diversity and number of fossils of any geological period has been made with those of the living animals and plants belonging to the same strata and families, in the latter case we find the facts corresponding which seems to me entirely unobjectionable, that the fossils discovered belonging and gliding are known to the same extent as the animals which live at present upon the surface; which is should be well understood that however numerous our knowledge of fossils may be, it has been restricted. A major influence on the development of American scientific culture Swiss born Louis Agassiz 1807-73 was one of the great scientists of his day A student of anatomist Georges Cuvier Agassiz adapted his teacher's pioneering techniques of comparative anatomy to paleontology and he rose to prominence as a distinguished systematist paleontologist and educator Agassiz introduced science to ordinary citizens to an unprecedented degree people around the world read his books sent him specimens and consulted his opinion Agassiz was also a staunch opponent of the theory of evolution and he was among the last of the reputable scientists who continued to reject the concept after the publication of The Origin of the Species All of nature bore testimony to a divine plan Agassiz believed and he could not reconcile himself to a theory that did not invoke God's design Ironically his 1851 Essay on Classification provided Darwin and other evolutionists with evidence from the fossil record to support the theory of natural selection A treasure of historically valuable insights that contributed to the development of evolutionary biology this volume introduced the landmark contention that paleontology embryology ecology and biogeography are inextricably linked in classifications that reveal the true relationships between organisms Its emphasis on advanced and original work gave major impetus to the study of science directly from nature and it remains a classic of American scientific literature      Annals & Magazine of Natural History, 1854      Act of Incorporation, Constitution, By-laws, and Lists of Officers and Members of the Chicago Academy of Sciences Chicago Academy of Sciences, 1865      Contributions to the Natural History of the United States of America Louis Agassiz, 1857      American Journal of Science, 1855
