Gilgen, 1997-10-30 This book compares the influence of the period leading up to World War II and of the war itself on the discipline of psychology in two major but very different countries During the 1930s Soviet psychologists were formally isolated from developments in Western psychology by the ideological requirements of the Communist Party in the United States a vast variety of topics was being researched When the war began the discipline in the Soviet Union turned increasingly toward specialized topics such as the rehabilitation of the wounded ways to improve morale and the psychological basis of color camouflage American psychologists on the other hand applied their psychometric and clinical skills to military needs With the coming of glasnost American and Russian psychologists were able to collaborate to create the first thorough examinations of the state of wartime psychology in these countries Of interest to all students and researchers of the history of psychology psychological theory and the history of World War II Trauma, Experience and Narrative in Europe after World War II Ville Kivimäki, Peter

Leese, 2021-12-03 This book promotes a historically and culturally sensitive understanding of trauma during and after World War II Focusing especially on Eastern and Central Europe its contributors take a fresh look at the experiences of violence and loss in 1939-45 and their long term effects in different cultures and societies The chapters analyze traumatic experiences among soldiers and civilians alike and expand the study of traumatic violence beyond psychiatric discourses and treatments While acknowledging the problems of applying a present day medical concept to the past this book makes a case for a cultural social and historical study of trauma Moving the focus of historical trauma studies from World War I to World War II and from Western Europe to the east it breaks new ground and helps to explain the troublesome politics of memory and trauma in post 1945 Europe all the way to the present day This book is an outcome of a workshop project Historical Trauma Studies funded by the Joint Committee for the Nordic Research Councils in the Humanities and Social Sciences NOS HS in 2018-20 Chapters 4, 5 and 6 are available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link.springer.com Ivan's War Catherine Merridale, 2024-09-04 May be the best historical portrait of life in the Red Army yet published researched with extraordinary patience and a wonderful ear for nuance Anne Applebaum The New York Review of Books Of the thirty million who fought in the eastern front of World War II eight million died driven forward in suicidal charges shattered by German shells and tanks They were the men and women of the Red Army a ragtag mass of soldiers who confronted Europe's most lethal fighting force and by 1945 had defeated it Sixty years have passed since their epic triumph but the heart and mind of Ivan as the ordinary Russian soldier was called remain a mystery We know something about how the soldiers died but nearly nothing about how they lived how they saw the world or why they fought Sourced from previously inaccessible military archives personal diaries and intimate veterans narratives author Catherine Merridale unveils the untold journey of these soldiers from their first encounter with the German offensive to their hard earned victory in Stalingrad a place where survival was measured in mere hours Accompany these brave hearts into the morose streets of Berlin as they face their anger fear and finally a bitter homecoming denied of the new life for which they sacrificed everything Discover this unique fusion of patriotism courage and human spirit that drove these undernourished poorly led troops to overthrow the Nazi menace Ivan s War emphatically places these invisible millions at the core of their deserved historical context accounting for their major role in shaping a new era A marvelous book confirms that Merridale is a superb historian Tony Judt author of Postwar Demobilized Veterans in Late Stalinist Leningrad Robert Dale,2015-10-29 This book investigates the demobilization and post war readjustment of Red Army veterans in Leningrad and its environs after the Great Patriotic War Over 300 000 soldiers were stood down in this war ravaged region between July 1945 and 1948 They found the transition to civilian life more challenging than many could ever have imagined For civilian Leningraders reintegrating the rapid influx of former soldiers represented an enormous political economic social and cultural challenge In this book Robert Dale reveals how these former soldiers became civilians in a society devastated and traumatized by total warfare Dale discusses how and how successfully veterans became ordinary citizens Based on extensive original research in local and national archives oral history interviews and the examination of various newspaper collections Demobilized Veterans in Late Stalinist Leningrad peels back the myths woven around demobilization to reveal a darker history repressed by society and concealed from historiography While propaganda celebrated this disarmament as a smooth process which reunited veterans with their families reintegrated them into the workforce and facilitated upward social mobility the reality was rarely straightforward Many veterans were caught up in the scramble for work housing healthcare and state hand outs Others drifted to the social margins criminality or became the victims of post war political repression Demobilized Veterans in Late Stalinist Leningrad tells the story of both the failure of local representatives to support returning Soviet soldiers and the remarkable resilience and creativity of veterans in solving the problems created by their return to society It is a vital study for all scholars and students of post war Soviet history and the impact of war in the modern era Acculturation and Psychological Adaptation Vanessa S. Castro,2003-01-30 This volume addresses the psychological impact of interethnic contact and acculturation in Latin American settings focusing on the effects of acculturation on self esteem among adolescents Opening with an account of relevant theoretical and empirical literature on interethnic contact and acculturation this book represents an acid test of the cross cultural applicability of theory and method largely derived from research on acculturation to North American and European settings Much research has focused on acculturation processes among ethnic immigrants and ethnic minorities leading to the impression that host or majority groups remain unchangeable during acculturation By contrast this volume shows that psychological changes occur in all groups involved in the contact reinforcing the idea that acculturation is a special case of mutual influence This book will be of special interest for researchers scholars or students seeking to understand the acculturation process outside North America and Europe Strong
