Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies Claudia V. Angelelli, Holly E. Jacobson, 2009

Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies examines issues of measurement that are essential to translation and interpreting. Conceptualizing testing both as a process and a product, the collection of papers explores these issues across languages and settings, including university classrooms, research projects, the private sector, and professional associations. The authors have approached their chapters from different perspectives, using a variety of methods, some focusing on very specific variables and others providing a much broader overview of the issues at hand. Chapters range from a discussion of the measurement of text cohesion in translation, the measurement of interactional competence in interpreting, the use of a particular scale to measure interpreters' renditions, to the application of a specific approach to grading or general program assessment, such as interpreter or translator certification at the national level or program admissions processes. These studies point to the need for greater integration of research and practice in the specific area of testing and assessment and are a welcome addition to the field.

A Practical Guide to Localization Bert Esselink, 2000-01-01

Translation technology has evolved quickly, with a large number of translation tools available. In this revised edition, much content has been added about translating and engineering HTML and XML documents, multilingual web sites, and HTML-based online help systems. Other major changes include the addition of chapters on internationalization, software quality assurance, desktop publishing, and localization support. There is a focus on translators who want to learn about localization and translation technology.
