Social Organization Of Schools New Conceptualizations Of The Learning Process:

The Social Organization of Schools Maureen T. Hallinan, 2013-06-29 This volume addresses key issues in the sociology of education concerning how schools are organized for instruction and what processes link school organization and instruction to educational achievement The content of the chapters represents a shift in focus from traditional and even recent themes in sociology of education including the study of school effects and of classroom processes to a concern with the social organization of schools and its consequences for student outcomes Rather than reviewing or evaluating existing research the chapters present new and developing conceptualizations of the schooling process and provide theoretical models to guide future empirical work on schools A unique feature of this book is its heavy emphasis on theory Each chapter presents a theoretical model or argument concerning an issue of central importance in sociology of education The empirical analyses and simulations that are included are often more for illustrative purposes than for rigorous hypothesis testing and some chapters have no data analysis at all The major strength of the volume therefore lies in the new conceptualizations and reconceptualizations it provides of fundamental processes relating school organization to student learning Theoretical work such as this is exactly what is needed in an area that has traditionally been for the most part empirical and atheoretical Another important feature of this volume is the various approaches it presents to the study of school organization

Catholic Schools and the Common Good Anthony S. Bryk, Valerie E. Lee, Peter Blakeley. Holland, Anthony S Bryk, 2009-06-30 The authors examine a broad range of Catholic high schools to determine whether or not students are better educated in these schools than they are in public schools They find that the Catholic schools do have an independent effect on achievement especially in reducing disparities between disadvantaged and privileged students The Catholic school of today they show is informed by a vision similar to that of John Dewey of the school as a community committed to democratic education and the common good of all students Small Schools, Education, and the Importance of Community Tim L. Adsit, 2011-06-16 Small Schools Education and the Importance of Community focuses on three successful approaches for using the school as a catalyst for community development and revitalization particularly in rural areas The strategies also work well in suburban and urban areas The three approaches described include leadership by K 12 teachers administrators and school boards particularly in the areas of developing schools as community centers community as curriculum and school based economic development Successful case studies are also included Inequality: Structures, Dynamics and Mechanisms Arne L. Kalleberg, Stephen L. Morgan, John Myles, Rachel A. Rosenfeld (Deceased), 2004-12-04 Aage Sorensen was an influential intellectual presence who was one of the world's leading authorities on social stratification and the sociology of education His research sought to understand the structures dynamics and mechanisms that underlie inequalities in industrial societies by focusing on how individuals' attainments are shaped by characteristics of a society's or organization's opportunity structure on the one hand and individuals' education experience and other human capital resources on the other He emphasized inequalities associated with education and schooling class and stratification outcomes such as income and occupational status Within these general foci he tackled the study of phenomena as diverse as rates of learning in elementary school reading groups and promotion patterns in large industrial corporations The chapters of this volume illustrate some of the major themes that characterized Aage's research these topics are also likely to constitute important concerns for future efforts to understand structured social inequality in society These themes include the development of explicit dynamic models to account for observed patterns of education career and labor market outcomes aspects of educational inequality such as school effects and learning opportunities issues related to intragenerational mobility and careers and the role of rents in generating structural inequality James S. Coleman Dr Jon Clark, Jon Clark, 2005-08-10 James S Coleman was one of a distinguished generation of sociology students who passed through the Columbia Sociology Department in the 1940s and 50s This book critically debates his work and his contribution to society and the social sciences more generally It consists of 18 major papers by 20 authors from six countries on a range of themes The volume is framed by an extended editorial introduction reflecting on the five year exchange of correspondence between James Coleman and the editor together with two of Coleman's own works Second International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Kenneth A. Leithwood, P. Hallinger, 2012-12-06 The first International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Leithwood et al was published in 1996 and quickly became something of a best seller for reference works within education Such success we suggest was at least partly due to the unprecedented global waves of concern for improving schools launched in the mid 1980's combined with a widespread belief in leadership as the single most powerful contribution to such improvement The roots of this belief can be found in evidence produced by the early effective schools research although there is a romance with leadership as an explanation for success in many non school enterprises as well During the two year period during which this current handbook was being written activity in the realms of school leadership school improvement and leadership development gained further momentum The English government created its new National College of School Leadership and several Asian nations announced new initiatives in leadership selection preparation and development

Handbook of the Sociology of Education Maureen T. Hallinan, 2006-11-24 The aim of the Handbook of Sociology of Education is to present the most theoretically grounded and empirically rigorous sociological analyses of schools to date The authors are distinguished researchers in the field Their contributions to the Handbook offer major theoretical perspectives on the schooling process and describe significant empirical studies of schools and their effects on individuals and society The research presented in the Handbook is built on three fundamental tenets of sociology First the authors adopt the perspective that schools are a central institution in society An understanding of the function of schooling in social life is enhanced by viewing schools as interrelated with other societal institutions The study of how the context of schooling influences education processes is critical to an understanding of school outcomes Rather than being determined solely by ascribed and achieved characteristics an individual's cognitive and social development are influenced heavily by the structures and networks in which the individual is embedded Communities families schools and social groups are critical elements in the educative process By viewing the school as a societal institution and highlighting the interaction between context and individual behavior the Handbook chapters provide a broader and deeper understanding of the determinants of learning in contemporary society The second sociological insight that guides the research in the Handbook is that the school is a social system

The Fractured College Prep Pipeline Heather E. Price, 2021 This book walks readers through the stages of the high school college prep pipeline that introduces interlocked structural barriers to students The author shows how these barriers reinforce segregated structures that unfairly distribute the public good of education to some students and not others Price argues that the college prep pipeline of Advanced Placement and International Baccalaureate coursework in American high schools constitutes a new form of tracking in the 21st century Even further this new tracking introduces a facade of college readiness that veils the unequal learning opportunities that send some students out into the college world with pockets full of counterfeit credentials that serve only to reinforce the historically oppressive system Whether intentional or not this new form of tracking is embedded in schools across the United States and have lifetime consequences for individual students that reinforce historically racial ethnic and spatial inequalities This book is a rigorous and engaging portrait of the architecture of opportunity in American schools With a fine grained analysis that never loses sight of the big picture Heather Price reveals structural realities of college readiness in the United States that are ripe for change Sean Kelly University of Pittsburgh
