Women, Oppression and Social Work Lesley Day, Mary Langan, 2002-09-11 Many of the gains of the women s movement over the past 20 years now seem threatened by the combined effects of prolonged economic insecurity reductions in the scope of welfare provision and a general shift in the climate of public opinion to the right Social workers are faced with the growing demands of a more impoverished and more unstable society with less resources to meet these demands In response to these pressures feminist social work has begun to move beyond some of the limitations of both the traditional and radical social work models of the past The emerging anti discriminatory model recognizes the diversity of oppressions according to race gender and class as well as those of age disability and sexual orientation Women Oppression and Social Work offers a new perspective on feminist social work which takes account of the complexity of the manifold oppressions that affect the lives of most women and most social work clients

Social Work, the Media and Public Relations (Routledge Revivals) Bob Franklin, Nigel Parton, 2014-06-17 Over the past few decades relationships between social workers and the media have become increasingly challenging Social workers feel aggrieved by media reporting of their profession and believe that journalists lack sufficient knowledge and experience of the social services to report matters adequately and sensitively whilst some journalists have urged social workers to adopt a more proactive public relations strategy This book first published in 1991 analyses the causes and consequences of the negative portrayal of social work within the media and considers various ways in which this image might be improved The authors consider a variety of developments during the 1990s designed to redress imbalances in media reporting and present a more accurate picture of social workers and the people with whom they work This title remains very relevant in light of the high profile cases related to the social service that continue to feature in the British press and will be of particular value to students and researchers with an interest in the relationship between the media and social policy

Narcissistic Parenting in an Insecure World Harry Hendrick, 2016-07-06 In this provocative history of parenting Harry Hendrick analyses the social and economic reasons behind parenting trends He shows how broader social changes including neoliberalism feminism the collapse of the social democratic ideal and the new behaviourism have led to the rise of the anxious and narcissistic parent The book charts the shift from the liberal and progressive parenting styles of the 1940s 70s to the more behavioural punitive and managerial methods of childrearing today made popular by experts such as Gina Ford and Supernanny Jo Frost and by New Labour's parent education programmes. This trend, Hendrick argues, is symptomatic of the sour, mean-spirited and vindictive social norms found throughout society today. It undermines the better instincts of parents and therefore damages parent-child relations. Instead, he proposes, parents should focus on understanding and helping their children as they work at growing up.

Families and Social Workers Pat Starkey, 2000-05-01 Families and Social Workers examines the origins, development and impact of Family Service Units (FSUs), a voluntary social work agency that during the post-war period exercised an influence on the development of social work practice and training out of all proportion to its size and resources. Originating in the activities of conscientious objectors in Liverpool, Manchester and Stepney during the Second World War, FSUs' innovative methods of working with poor families led to the establishment of units in towns and cities throughout Britain. This study shows how FSUs met the challenges and opportunities presented by the introduction of state-run social services, evaluates its successes and failures in terms of the aims that units set themselves and examines the conflicts that arose between FSUs' commitment to independence and innovation and its dependence on local authority funding.

Social Work in a Risk Society Stephen A. Webb, 2006-01-23 This path-breaking text constructs a new way of thinking about social work based on contemporary social theory. Working in a counter-tradition that is suspicious of a number of governing ideas and practices in social work, it draws on themes from Beck, Giddens, Rose to explore the impact of risk society and neo-liberalism on social work.

Welfare Policy in Britain Rodney Lowe, Helen Fawcett, 2016-07-27 The welfare state arouses controversy: whether attention is focused on its recent past or future development. Leading experts in welfare history draw together the latest research in essays combining broad policy surveys and detailed case studies. The key questions are: What is a welfare state and how can it best be analysed? The history of the British welfare state suggests that the traditional approach has been too narrow. Current policy should be informed by a greater sense of history.

Social Change, Social Policy and Social Work in the New Europe Anna Kwak, Robert Dingwall, 2019-01-04 First published in 1998, this edited volume reflected on the role of universities and aimed to improve the preparation of social welfare professionals by the University of Warsaw for employment in the new market-oriented society that was being created in Poland after the end of real socialism in 1989. Many of its articles were previously published in Polish and were published, revised and updated in English for the first time in this collection. The contributors discuss two key issues: First, should universities worry about the employment of their graduates and the skills that are needed by the wider economy and society, or just focus on transmitting advanced learning? Second, they considered the modernisation of the welfare state The Polish experience and the Western partners reaction to it has proved an excellent case study for these issues Understanding Social Work Practice in Mental Health Vicki Coppock,Bob Dunn,R.
