

Thompson (2000) argues, in the book Understanding social work, that skill development in social work education tends to involve two main elements:

(Source: Thompson, Neil (2000): Understanding social work. Preparing for practice, N.York: Palgrave, 17-183)

As Oded Manor (2004:290) comments, in the Blackwell Encyclopedia of Social Work, the relationship skills are the observable behaviours to which workers resort while forming, sustaining, and terminating the working alliance with clients and others involved.

Exercising these skills is necessary for promoting the process of bonding, among, those involved in a collaborative working, alliance. These skills can be learned, and include:

- Listening actively
- Conveying respect
- Communicating empathy
- Expressing oneself genuinely
- Being specific
- Sharing one's own feelings

As we have seen, social work's competences and skills are in permanent dialogue, and will not be separately analysed from the daily practice of those who operates in agencies with administrations, other professionals, teams, social partners, communities and users. In the approach of empowerment, advocacy, social mediation, partnership or other, the communication competences seems to be the crucial one, which adequate using in and with different context and persons allows the human and social development in respect for the values of citizenship and quality of services provided.
