the reader to explore for instance how individuals construct their identity against the backdrop of political transformations or contested territories and thereby become initiands or fail to do so. Contrary to what one might expect, initiations are not only defining moments in childhood and early adulthood; instead, Roth shows how initiation processes recur throughout an individual's life.

Hezbollah, Islamist Politics, and International Society Filippo Dionigi, 2014-12-16. How do the norms of the liberal international order affect the activity of Islamist movements? This book analyzes and assesses the extent to which Islamist groups, which have traditionally attempted to shield their communities from alien moral conceptions, have been affected by the rules and principles that regulate international society. Through an analysis of Lebanon's Hezbollah, Filippo Dionigi concludes that international norms are among the most significant factors changing Islamist politics. The result is a precarious but innovative equilibrium in which Islamists are forced to rethink their idea of an allegedly authentic Islamic morality and the legitimacy of international norms.

Reading Germany Gideon Reuveni, 2006. By closely examining the interaction between intellectual and material culture in the period before the Nazis came to power in Germany, the author comes to the conclusion that, contrary to widely held assumptions, consumer culture in the Weimar period far from undermining reading, used reading culture to enhance its goods and values. Reading material was marked as a consumer good while reading as an activity raising expectations as it did influence consumer culture. Consequently, consumption contributed to the diffusion of reading culture while at the same time a popular reading culture strengthened consumption and its values. Gideon Reuveni is Director of the Centre for German Jewish Studies at the University of Sussex. He is the co-editor of The Economy in Jewish History (Berghahn, 2010) and several other books on different aspects of Jewish history. Presently, he is working on a book on consumer culture and the making of Jewish identity in Europe.

Political Literacy in Composition and Rhetoric Donald Lazere, 2015-07-20. In Political Literacy in Composition and Rhetoric, Donald Lazere calls for revival of NCTE resolutions in the 1970s for teaching the critical reading, listening, viewing, and thinking skills necessary to enable students to cope with the persuasive techniques in political statements, advertising, entertainment, and news, and explores the reasons these goals have been eclipsed in composition studies over recent decades. Obstacles to those goals have included the emphasis in the profession on basic and first-year writing at the expense of more advanced study in argumentative rhetoric and on the privileging of students' personal writing over critical study of both academic and political discourse. Lazere further argues that theorists who legitimately champion students' pluralistic local communities sometimes fail to recognize that liberal education can enable students to grow beyond their home cultures to critical awareness of national and international politics.

Finally he argues that the fixation in recent composition studies on liberally inclined students and communities on the margins has eclipsed attention to the conservative conformity long prevalent in mainstream American society and education. His proposals for curriculum and pedagogy seek to introduce students to a more highly informed cogent and open ended level of debate between the political left and right.
