Social Interaction in Learning and Instruction Helen Cowie, Geerdina Van der Aalsvoort, 2000-01 Hardbound This exciting new text examines how knowledge is socially constructed and shared through discursive interactions within the classroom community The contributors discuss the meaning of the cognitive emotional and social discourses that exist between teachers and learners and suggest how teachers can create an effective learning partnership to stimulate children The authors also consider how children in turn construe the curriculum and how they perceive the ground rules and peer relationships within the classroom community By reporting findings from state of the art studies in a range of Western cultural contexts the authors are able to overview key theoretical perspectives and synthesise the methods currently being developed for measuring social interaction in learning and instruction

Learning, Social Interaction and Diversity - Exploring Identities in School Practices Eva Hjörne, Geerdina van der Aalsvoort, Guida de Abreu, 2012-09-05 The main idea of the book is to contribute to a broader understanding of learning identity and diversity by presenting actual research findings that were retrieved from classroom settings and related social practices Learning is to a large extent an ongoing social process as both students and their teachers learn by being part of shared social practices through social interactions that facilitate learning gains Sociocultural research shows that the organization of schooling promotes or restricts learning and is a crucial factor to understand how children from a diversity of backgrounds profit from instruction This is a first urgent issue to be considered by teachers and teacher education in our socio and culturally diverse society A second issue is the on going debate about learning as a process that involves the construction of identities in schools and classrooms and in the transitions between school and home practices Last but not least since school practices can be addressed from the perspective of diversity and special educational needs an on going discussion about optimizing pedagogical approaches is of main importance to allow maximum educational effectiveness Our potential audience for this book are researchers post graduate students in education and psychology teachers teacher education other academics and policy makers

Theories of Learning and Studies of Instructional Practice Timothy Koschmann, 2011-04-19 This is a book about an attempt to change the way math was taught in a particular classroom Its title plays on our everyday usage of the terms theory and practice In education these terms are conventionally treated oppositionally we have theories about what we should do and we have what teachers actually do do In this way theory stands prior logically and chronologically to practice practice inevitably becoming theory s imperfect realization We seek in this volume however to develop a different stance with regard to the relationship between the two Taking the details of instructional practice as our principle object of study we explore what role theories of learning might play in illuminating such practices The book is about actual practices by which teaching is done and how contemporary theories of learning might help us understand those practices It seeks to provide a foundation for future practice based inquiry in education by addressing the methodological question How do we go about studying instructional practice in a principled way technologies has grown Now in a fully revised and updated second edition Teaching and Researching Autonomy provides an accessible and comprehensive critical account of the theory and practice of autonomy Examining the history of the concept it addresses important questions of how we can identify autonomy in language learning behaviours and how we can evaluate the wide variety of educational practices that have been designed to foster autonomy in learning Topics new to this edition include Autonomy and new technologies Teacher autonomy The sociocultural implications of autonomy With over three hundred new references and five new case studies of research on autonomy providing practical advice on research methods and topics in the field Teaching and Researching Autonomy will be an essential introduction for teachers and students to a subject at the cutting edge of language teaching and research Media Rich Instruction Rosemary Papa, 2014-06-27 E learning has brought an enormous change to instruction in terms of both rules and tools Contemporary education requires diverse and creative uses of media technology to keep students engaged and to keep up with rapid developments in the ways they learn and teachers teach Media Rich Instruction addresses these requirements with up to date learning theory and practices that incorporate innovative platforms for information delivery into traditional areas such as learning skills and learner characteristics Experts in media rich classroom experiences and online instruction delve into the latest findings on student cognitive processes and motivation to learn while offering multimedia classroom strategies geared to specific curriculum areas Advances such as personal learning environments gamification and the Massive Open Online Course are analyzed in the context of their potential for collaborative and transformative learning And each chapter features key questions and application activities to make coverage especially practical across grade levels and learner populations Among the topics included Building successful learning experiences online Language and literacy reading and writing Mathematics teaching and learning with and through education technology Learning science through experiment and practice Social studies teaching for learner engagement The arts and Technology Connecting school to community At a time when many are pondering the future of academic standards and student capacity to learn Media Rich Instruction is a unique source of concrete knowledge and useful ideas for current and future researchers and practitioners in media rich instructional strategies and practices Online Education and Adult Learning: New Frontiers for Teaching Practices Kidd, Terry T., 2009-08-31 This book disseminates current issues and trends emerging in the field of adult e learning and online instruction Provided by publisher Stepping-stones to improve upon functioning of participatory agricultural extension programs Prossy Isubikalu, 2023-08-28 The Farmer Field School FFS originated in the 1980s in the context of integrated pest management in Indonesian rice farming With the hope that it is the remedy for agricultural extension system FFS has been promoted as a tool for participatory learning and experimentation all over the world This work results from a critical analysis of the introduction of the FFS concept into the agricultural innovation system in Uganda Ideally an FFS produces new technical knowledge in the context of application through the input of local human resources The analysis framed as a

technography shows that implementation and operation of an FFS is hugely complex This detailed study of institutional factors from the level of international donor organizations down to the level of local leadership and gender relations and analysis of technical factors in different rural areas of Uganda makes clear that and FFS is more than a local tool for farmer participation in agricultural improvement Implementation of a FFS requires adjustment of the agricultural innovation system at all levels and an integrated tackling of agricultural problems in order to meet its objectives Isubikalu shows that it is imperative to demolish existing organizational structures and create new ones which align scientific with local structures to produce an appropriate people centered system that is more responsive to agricultural and rural development She provides stepping stones in redesigning FFS to fit the specific conditions in Uganda Dialogic Learning Jos van den Linden, Peter Renshaw, 2006-01-12 Contemporary researchers have analysed dialogue primarily in terms of instruction conversation or inquiry There is an irreducible tension when the terms dialogue and instruction are brought together because the former implies an emergent process of give and take whereas the latter implies a sequence of predetermined moves It is argued that effective teachers have learned how to perform in this contradictory space to both follow and lead to be both responsive and directive to require both independence and receptiveness from learners Instructional dialogue therefore is an artful performance rather than a prescribed technique Dialogues also may be structured as conversations which function to build consensus conformity to everyday ritualistic practices and a sense of community The dark side of the dialogic we and the community formed around our and us is the inevitable boundary that excludes them and theirs When dialogues are structured to build consensus and community critical reflection on the bases of that consensus is required and vigilance to ensure that difference and diversity are not being excluded or assimilated see Renshaw 2002 Again it is argued that there is an irreducible tension here because understanding and appreciating diversity can be achieved only through engagement and living together in communities Teachers who work to create such communities in their classrooms need to balance the need for common practices with the space to be different resistant or challenging again an artful performance that is difficult to articulate in terms of specific teaching techniques

Discourse and language learning across L2 instructional settings, 2012-01-01 Studies on discourse and language learning originated in the field of general education and they focused on first language learning environments However since 1980s research on discourse and language learning broadened the scope of investigation to respond to second and foreign language environments Recently the emergence of new language learning contexts such as computer mediated communication multilingual settings or content and language integrated contexts requires further research that focuses on discourse and language learning From this perspective the present volume aims to broaden the scope of investigation in foreign language contexts by exploring discourse patterns in the classroom and examining the impact of factors such as gender explicitness of feedback or L1 use on language learning through discourse With that aim in mind this volume will bring together research that investigates discourse in various instructional settings namely those of primary secondary and university L2 learning environments content and language integrated contexts and other new language learning settings The number and variety of languages involved both as the first language e g English Finnish Basque Spanish Japanese French Italian Catalan as well as the target foreign language e g English French Italian Japanese Spanish makes the volume specially attractive Additionally the different approaches adopted by the researchers participating in this volume such as information processing sociocultural theory or conversation analysis widen the realm of investigation on discourse and language learning Finally the strength of the volume also lies in the range of educational settings primary secondary and tertiary education and the worldwide representation of contributors across seven different countries namely those of Spain France Austria Finland Germany Canada Australia and the United States The uniqueness of the volume is due to its eclectic and comprehensive nature in tackling instructional discourse Worldwide outstanding researchers like Julianne House Carme Mu oz Ute Smit Tarja Nikula or Roy Lyster to quote but a few adopt different perspectives in this joint contribution that will certainly broaden the scope of research on language learners discourse
