Story Of A Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson:

The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson In Which is Told the Part Taken by the Rockbridge Artillery in the Army of Northern Virginia Edward Alexander Moore, 2020-09-28 At the age of eighteen I was a member of the Junior Class at Washington College at Lexington Virginia during the session of 1860 61 and with the rest of the students was more interested in the foreshadowings of that ominous period than in the teachings of the professors Among our number there were a few from the States farther south who seemed to have been born secessionists while a large majority of the students were decidedly in favor of the Union Our president the Rev Dr George Junkin who hailed from the North was heart and soul a Union man notwithstanding the fact that one of his daughters was the first wife of Major Thomas J Jackson who developed into the world renowned Stonewall Jackson Another daughter was the great Southern poetess Mrs Margaret J Preston and Dr Junkin s son Rev W F Junkin a most lovable man became an ardent Southern soldier and a chaplain in the Confederate Army throughout the war At the anniversary of the Washington Literary Society on February 22 1861 the right of secession was attacked and defended by the participants in the discussion with no less zeal than they afterward displayed on many bloody battlefields We had as a near neighbor the Virginia Military Institute The West Point of the South where scores of her young chivalry were assembled who were eager to put into practice the subjects taught in their school Previous to these exciting times not the most kindly feelings and but little intercourse had existed between the two bodies of young men The secession element in the College however finding more congenial company among the cadets opened up the way for quite intimate and friendly relations between the two institutions In January 1861 the corps of cadets had been ordered by Governor Wise to be present as a military guard at the execution of John Brown at Harper s Ferry After their return more than the usual time was given to the drill and target shooting with cannon and small arms was daily practised in our hearing Only a small proportion of the citizens of the community favored secession but they were very aggressive One afternoon while a huge Union flag pole was being raised on the street which when half way up snapped and fell to the ground in pieces I witnessed a personal encounter between a cadet and a mechanic the latter afterward deserted from our battery during the Gettysburg campaign in Pennsylvania his native State which was promptly taken up by their respective friends The cadets who were present hastened to their barracks and joined by their comrades armed themselves and with fixed bayonets came streaming at double quick toward the town They were met at the end of Main street by their professors conspicuous among whom was Colonel Colston on horseback He was a native of France and professor of French at the Institute he became a major general in the Confederate Army and later a general in the Egyptian Army After considerable persuasion the cadets were induced to return to their barracks

The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson (Civil War Classics) Edward Alexander Moore, Civil War Classics, 2015-01-13 To commemorate the 150th Anniversary of the end of the Civil War Diversion Books is publishing seminal works of the era stories told by the men and women who led who fought and who lived in an America that had come apart at the seams I now present this volume as the only published record of that company celebrated as it was even in that matchless body of men the Army of Northern Virginia This boots on the ground memoir told by a man who enlisted barely out of childhood and lived through some of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War will entrance readers with its stirring narrative and attention to detail Leander Stillwell s stories mix the mundane day to day life of a soldier with visceral accounts of fighting in a war The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson Edward Moore,2012-06-22 Published in 1910 these are the recollections of Edward Moore who was a member of the Rockbridge Artillery under the command of Confederate General Stonewall Jackson during the Civil War The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson Edward A. Moore,2015-06-26 Excerpt from The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson In Which Is Told the Part Taken by the Rockbridge Artillery in the Army of Northern Virginia More than thirty years ago at the solicitation of my kinsman H C McDowell of Kentucky I undertook to write a sketch of my war experience McDowell was a major in the Federal Army during the civil war and with eleven first cousins including Gen Irvin McDowell fought against the same number of first cousins in the Confederate Army Various interruptions prevented the completion of my work at that time More recently after despairing of the hope that some more capable member of my old command the Rockbridge Artillery would not allow its history to pass into oblivion I resumed the task and now present this volume as the only published record of that company celebrated as it was even in that matchless body of men the Army of Northern Virginia About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Story of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson Edward A. of a Cannoneer Under Stonewall Jackson Edward Moore,2014-09-13 This is an account written by a Civil War veteran who served in an artillery unit under the legendary Confederate general Stonewall Jackson From an intro written by Robert E Lee s son The title of this book at once rivets attention and invites perusal and that perusal does not disappoint expectation The author was a cannoneer in the historic Rockbridge Va Artillery which made for itself from Manassas to Appomattox a reputation second to none in the Confederate service No more vivid picture has been presented of the private soldier in camp on the march or in action It was written evidently not with any commercial view but was an undertaking from a conviction that its performance was a question of duty to his comrades Its unlabored and spontaneous character adds to its value Its detail is evidence of a living presence intent only upon truth It is not only carefully planned but minutely finished The duty has been performed faithfully and entertainingly We are glad these delightful pages have not been marred by discussion of the causes or conduct of the great struggle between the States There is no theorizing or special pleading to distract our attention from the unvarnished story of the Confederate soldier The writer is simple impressive and sincere And his memory is not less faithful It is a striking and truthful portrayal of the times under the standard of one of the greatest generals of ancient or modern times It is from such books that data will be gathered by the future historian for a true story of the great conflict between the States For nearly a year from March to November 1862 I served in the battery with this cannoneer and for a time we were in the same mess Since the war I have known him intimately and it gives me great pleasure to be able to say that there is no one who could give a more honest and truthful account of the events of our struggle from the standpoint of a private soldier He had exceptional opportunities for observing men and events and has taken full advantage of them
