Worrying and Love the Bomb Peter Krämer, 2017-10-07 Stanley Kubrick's Dr Strangelove or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb 1964 has long been recognised as one of the key artistic expressions of the nuclear age. Made at a time when nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union was a real possibility, the film is menacing, exhilarating, thrilling, insightful, and very funny. Combining a scene-by-scene analysis of Dr Strangelove with new research in the Stanley Kubrick Archive, Peter Krämer's study foregrounds the connections the film establishes between the Cold War and World War II and between sixties America and Nazi Germany. How did the film come to be named after a character who only appears in it very briefly? Why does he turn out to be a Nazi? And how are his ideas for post-apocalyptic survival in mineshafts connected to the sexual fantasies of the military men who destroy life on the surface of the Earth? This special edition features original cover artwork by Marian Bantjes.

Reading Matters Ulrich Marzolph, 2023 The present book is a special gift for a special colleague and friend. Defined as an Unfestschrift, it gives colleagues, students, and friends of Regina Bendix an opportunity to express their esteem for Regina's inspiration, cooperation, leadership, and friendship in an adequate and lasting manner. The title of the present book, Reading Matters, is as close as possible to an English equivalent of the beautiful German double entendre Erlesenes, meaning both something read and a reading, and something exquisite. Presenting matters for reading, the Unfestschrift unites short contributions about readings that mattered in some way or another for the contributors: readings that had an impact on their understanding of whatever they were at some time or presently are interested in. The term readings is understood widely. Since most of the invited contributors are academics, the term implies in the first place readings of an academic or scholarly nature. In a wider notion, however, readings also refer to any other piece of literature, the perception of a piece of art, a painting, a sculpture, a performance, listening to music, appreciating a folkloric performance, or a fieldwork experience, or just anything else whose reading or individual perception has been meaningful for the contributors in different ways. Contrary to a strictly scholarly treatment of a given topic in which the author often disappears behind the subject, the presentations unveil and highlight the contributor's personal involvement and thus a dimension of crucial importance for ethnographers such as the dedicatee.

Inspector Strangelove Rolf McEwen, 2009-11 Inspector Strangelove is an adaptation by Rolf McEwen of The Inspector General by Nikolai Gogol. The plot revolves around a case of mistaken identity in which an impoverished young civil servant from Saint Petersburg, Klestakov, is thought by the leaders of a small village to be an important government inspector. It's a terrible mistake that costs them dearly. The government officials fear the consequences of a visit by an inspector because he might uncover the corruption of which they are guilty. Klestakov, when he realizes that they have mistaken him for an inspector, makes the most of the situation. He creates exaggerated tales of his life as a high-ranking government official. He solicits bribes from village officials. In a bold and reckless gesture, he proposes to the governor's daughter. He flees the village before his true identity can be discovered. The townspeople realize their mistake soon after he is gone. Then a shocking twist of fate falls upon the officials of this humble village in Russia Against Interpretation Susan Sontag,2001-08-25 The author relates her theories of literary criticism to the total aesthetic experience The Complete Index to Literary Sources in Film Alan Goble,2011-09-08 No detailed description available for The Complete Index to Literary Sources in Film From Critical Theology to a Critical Theory of Religious Insight Marc Philippe Lalonde,2007 Original Scholarly Monograph
