Strategic Appraisal 1996:

Strategic Appraisal 1996, 1996 The Western victory in the Cold War has left the United States as the world's preeminent power. At the moment it faces no global rival and no significant hostile alliance that might threaten its security or vital interests. Despite a decline in its relative economic power, the United States still has the world's largest economy. Moreover, the United States possesses military predominance, and American political and economic ideas have broad global appeal. Almost all of the economically capable nations are our allies. In modern times, no single nation has held a position as preeminent as that of the United States today. At the same time, with the end of the Cold War, there has been an increase in disorder as a result of the rise in ethnic nationalism and the fragmentation of several states. Among the Cold War allies, there is intense economic competition, and managing alliance relations has become more difficult in the absence of a powerful common enemy. Several powers are opposed to the new international configuration. Some of these are rogue states such as North Korea, Iran, and Iraq. But some major powers such as Russia and China are also dissatisfied with the status quo.

Strategic Appraisal Zalmay Khalilzad, John P. White, 1999 Advances in information technology have led us to rely on easy communication and readily available information both in our personal lives and in the life of our nation. For the most part, we have rightly welcomed these changes. But information that is readily available is available to friend and foe alike; a system that relies on communication can become useless if its ability to communicate is interfered with or destroyed. Because this reliance is so general, attacks on the information infrastructure can have widespread effects both for the military and for society. And such attacks can come from a variety of sources, some difficult or impossible to identify. This, the third volume in the Strategic Appraisal series, draws on the expertise of researchers from across RAND to explore the opportunities and vulnerabilities inherent in the increasing reliance on information technology, looking both at its usefulness to the warrior and the need to protect its usefulness for everyone. The Strategic Appraisal series is intended to review for a broad audience issues bearing on national security and defense planning. Strategic Assessment National Defense University. Institute for National Strategic Studies, 1995. Strategic Assessment, 1997. Strategic Assessment (1997) Hans Binnendijk, Patrick L. Clawson, 1997-10. This Assessment is aimed at policymakers, analysts, and members of the public who want a serious summary of the threats facing the U.S. in the next decade. Contents: major powers (Russia, Europe, China, Japan, North America), significant regional contingencies (Persian Gulf, Korean peninsula, Arab-Israel conflict, India-Pakistan), proliferation, troubled states (Balkans, Sub-Saharan Africa, Middle Eastern radicalism), transnational problems (international terrorism, international crime, refugees, migration), and population force structure threat assessment, key military missions, force structure. Illustrated.

Strategic Environmental Assessment in Action Riki Therivel, 2013. This practical guide on how to carry out strategic environmental assessment (SEA) presents a coherent how-to approach for the practitioner. It is the first publication to take account of the requirements of the European Union Directive 2001/42/EC, known as the SEA Directive, and the UNECE

Protocol on SEA Part I provides an overview of the aims principles advantages and problems of SEA as well as looking at the SEA Directive and its requirements Part II examines the SEA process in considerable detail including setting the context describing the baseline identifying alternatives predicting and evaluating impacts and using the SEA information in monitoring and decision making Part III is devoted to assuring SEA quality with a discussion of resources and capacity building Employing real life case studies each chapter presents a range of techniques and discusses what the final product should look like Appendices provide a wealth of additional information including text of the SEA Directive and the UNECE Protocol on SEA and a toolkit of SEA techniques The approach and techniques in Strategic Environmental Assessment in Action are useful for anyone carrying out SEA at any level from policy to programme international to local but particularly for practitioners responsible for implementing the SEA Directive

1998 Strategic Assessment Engaging Power For Peace

,1998 Over the past few years the Department of Defense has been intensifying its study of the global security situation U S force posture and future defense requirements The National Defense University contributes to this dialog through Strategic Assessment an annual publication which applies the expertise of this institution through the leadership of its interdisciplinary research arm the Institute for National Strategic Studies with the assistance of specialists from elsewhere in government and academe Offering such analyses in both general and particular areas of interest to the national security community is an important aspect of the NDU mission This volume examines various approaches that the United States might adopt to shape the strategic environment of the future The current environment is characterized by instability and change The U S Government needs to apply the full range of options at its disposal to achieve national goals and ensure the peace and stability required to preserve our rights to life liberty and the pursuit of happiness But such options must be studied and conceptualized for years and in some cases decades in advance to take advantage of the opportunities presented by a changing global environment The recent Quadrennial Defense Review QDR recommended a series of defense posture changes This volume reviews these recommendations and takes the next analytical step to propose what is entailed by such changes Strategic Assessment 1998 Engaging Power for Peace should prove useful beyond the defense establishment to all readers with an interest in national security affairs
