The Limits Of Humanitarian Intervention Genocide In Rwanda:

The Limits of Humanitarian Intervention Alan J. Kuperman, 2004-05-13 In 1994 genocide in Rwanda claimed the lives of at least 500 000 Tutsi some three quarters of their population while UN peacekeepers were withdrawn and the rest of the world stood aside Ever since it has been argued that a small military intervention could have prevented most of the killing In The Limits of Humanitarian Intervention Alan J Kuperman exposes such conventional wisdom as myth Combining unprecedented analyses of the genocide s progression and the logistical limitations of humanitarian military intervention Kuperman reaches a startling conclusion even if Western leaders had ordered an intervention as soon as they became aware of a nationwide genocide in Rwanda the intervention forces would have arrived too late to save more than a quarter of the 500 000 Tutsi ultimately killed Serving as a cautionary message about the limits of humanitarian intervention the book s concluding chapters address lessons for the future The Ethics of Humanitarian Intervention Jonathan Parry, 2024-12-20 Few topics generate as much controversy and debate as armed humanitarian intervention Military force involves death and destruction as well as interfering in other countries domestic affairs But crucially non intervention is also controversial When confronted with humanitarian crises abroad many feel that outsiders are not only justified in using force to halt the abuses but that they must do so The Ethics of Humanitarian Intervention An Introduction offers a guide to these ethical debates In clear and informative style Jonathan Parry explores the following topics The morality of defending others including the responsibility to protect R2P State sovereignty and self determination as barriers to intervention The possibility of consensual intervention Just causes for intervention what kinds of human rights abuses warrant intervention The effectiveness of intervention does it work in practice Alternatives to intervention including aiding rebels economic sanctions and providing aid Whether there is a duty to intervene Examples of intervention including the former Yugoslavia Iraq Liberia and Libya are used to illustrate the ethical dilemmas in question The arguments of important theorists of intervention such as John Stuart Mill Michael Walzer and Jeff McMahan are also explained clearly and critically Each chapter concludes with questions for discussion and reflection The Ethics of Humanitarian Intervention An Introduction is ideal reading for students and researchers in philosophy applied ethics politics and international relations Chapter 3 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 license

Final Solutions Benjamin A. Valentino, 2013-01-14 Benjamin A Valentino finds that ethnic hatreds or discrimination undemocratic systems of government and dysfunctions in society play a much smaller role in mass killing and genocide than is commonly assumed He shows that the impetus for mass killing usually originates from a relatively small group of powerful leaders and is often carried out without the active support of broader society Mass killing in his view is a brutal political or military strategy designed to accomplish leaders most important objectives counter threats to their power and solve their most difficult problems In order to capture the full scope of mass killing during the twentieth century Valentino does not limit his analysis to violence directed against ethnic groups or to the attempt to destroy victim groups as such as do most previous studies of genocide Rather he defines mass killing broadly as the intentional killing of a massive number of noncombatants using the criteria of 50 000 or more deaths within five years as a quantitative standard Final Solutions focuses on three types of mass killing communist mass killings like the ones carried out in the Soviet Union China and Cambodia ethnic genocides as in Armenia Nazi Germany and Rwanda and counter guerrilla campaigns including the brutal civil war in Guatemala and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan Valentino closes the book by arguing that attempts to prevent mass killing should focus on disarming and removing from power the leaders and small groups responsible for instigating and organizing the killing

International Responses to Mass Atrocities in Africa Kurt Mills, 2015-10-16 Since the end of World War II and the founding of the United Nations genocide crimes against humanity and other war crimes mass atrocities have been explicitly illegal When such crimes are committed the international community has an obligation to respond the human rights of the victims outweigh the sovereignty claims of states that engage in or allow such human rights violations This obligation has come to be known as the responsibility to protect Yet parallel to this responsibility two other related responsibilities have developed to prosecute those responsible for the crimes and to provide humanitarian relief to the victims what the author calls the responsibility to palliate Even though this rhetoric of protecting those in need is well used by the international community its application in practice has been erratic at best In International Responses to Mass Atrocities in Africa Kurt Mills develops a typology of responses to mass atrocities investigates the limitations of these responses and calls for such responses to be implemented in a more timely and thoughtful manner Mills considers four cases of international responses to mass atrocities in Rwanda the Democratic Republic of the Congo Uganda and Darfur putting the cases into historical context and analyzing them according to the typology showing how the responses interact Although all are intended to address human suffering they are very different types of actions and accomplish different things over different timescales on different orders of magnitude and by very different types of actors But the critical question is whether they accomplish their objectives in a mutually supportive way and what the trade offs in using one or more of these responses may be By expanding the understanding of international responsibilities Mills provides critical analysis of the possibilities for the international community to respond to humanitarian crises group culture it has generated Using an innovative methodology she investigates the motivations of individuals who become peacebuilders their professional trajectories and networks and the good peacebuilder as an ideal For many working in peacebuilding in various ways as an aid worker on the ground as a lawyer at the United Nations or as an academic in a think tank has become not merely a livelihood but also a form of participation in world politics As a field peacebuilding has developed techniques for incorporating and training new members yet its internal politics also create the conditions of exclusion that often result in practical failures of the peacebuilding enterprise By providing a critical account of the social mechanisms that make up the peacebuilding field Goetze offers deep insights into the workings of Western domination and global inequalities
