Teaching with Tension Philathia Bolton, Cassander L. Smith, Lee Bebout, 2019-01-15 Teaching with Tension is a collection of seventeen original essays that address the extent to which attitudes about race impacted by the current political moment in the United States have produced pedagogical challenges for professors in the humanities As a flashpoint this current political moment is defined by the visibility of the country's first black president the election of his successor whose presidency has been associated with an increased visibility of the alt right and the emergence of the neoliberal university Together these social currents shape the tensions with which we teach Drawing together personal reflection pedagogical strategies and critical theory Teaching with Tension offers concrete examinations that will foster student learning The essays are organized into three thematic sections Teaching in Times and Places of Struggle examines the dynamics of teaching race during the current moment marked by neoconservative politics and twenty first century freedom struggles Teaching in the Neoliberal University focuses on how pressures and exigencies of neoliberalism such as individualism customer service models of education and online courses impact the way in which race is taught and conceptualized in college classes The final section Teaching How to Read Race and Counter Narratives homes in on direct strategies used to historicize race in classrooms comprised of millennials who grapple with race neutral ideologies Taken together these sections and their constitutive essays offer rich and fruitful insight into the complex dynamics of contemporary race and ethnic studies education Private Practices Meredith Rogers Cherland, 1994 A constructed world Gender practices Literacy practices Instructional practices Identity practices Private lessons Private Practices Meredith Cherland University of Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada., 2013-10-23 First Published in 1994 The study of literacy no longer focuses solely on psychological processes In the past ten years literacy has been reconceptualized as a social practice or rather as social practices that make up the fabric of daily life Using an anthropological perspective Private Practices examines the broad fictional reading of middle class pre teen girls and offers fresh insights into the place of literacy both at home and at school in the construction of gender The author provides a wealth of evidence to support the central assumption of the book Gender is a cultural and social construction not a biological given Gender is something that people create while interacting with each other in all the practices of their daily lives including their literacy practices The book also provides critical analysis and commentary concerning the role that reading fiction plays in cultural reproduction In the hope that deeper knowledge of literacy as a social practice will support social transformation and eventually social justice the author suggests compelling reasons for the fact that girls read more fiction and different fiction than do boys

Begin Here Rocio G. Davis, 2007-01-31 An analytically innovative work Begin Here widens the current critical focus of Asian North American literary studies by proposing an integrated thematic and narratological approach to the practice of autobiography It demonstrates how Asian North American memoirs of childhood challenge the construction and performative potential of national experiences This understanding influences theoretical approaches to ethnic life writing expanding the boundaries of traditional autobiography by negotiating narrative techniques and genre and raising complex questions about self representation and the construction of cultural memory By examining the artistic project of some fifty Asian North American writers who deploy their childhood narratives in the representation of the individual processes of self identification and negotiation of cultural and national affiliation this work provides a comprehensive overview of Asian North American autobiographies of childhood published over the last century Importantly it also attends to new ways of writing autobiographies employing comics blending verse prose diaries and life writing for children and using relational approaches to self identification among others
