The American Journal of Occupational Therapy , 1996 The Kawa Model Michael K. Iwama, 2006-07-25 A landmark publication in occupational therapy and a significant contribution to the rehabilitation theory literature The Kawa Model presents a new conceptual model of practice that differs from contemporary theories in regard to origin East Asia underlying philosophical base East Asia being heavily infused with a natural ecological holistic world view and relational structure The model is based on the metaphor of nature a river that stands for the meanings of life Because of the familiarity of the metaphor to both therapists and clients alike the Kawa Model is relatively easy to comprehend remarkably simple yet comprehensive and effective Unlike other models it was raised from clinical practice by practitioners through a process of qualitative research methods It is the first conceptual model and substantial theoretical work of occupational therapy from outside of the Western world A must read for all students of occupational therapy The first substantial work in occupational therapy from outside of the Western world Introduces an Eastern perspective on matters of theory and culture in occupational therapy Eight case studies four from Western practice contexts and four from the East Developed by clinicians and practitioners for their peers Questions the cultural boundaries of occupational therapy its knowledge epistemology theory and practice It puts the reader in touch with the cultural nature of self client and profession Enables readers to develop critical analysis skills for examining matters of theory and culture as opposed to learning theory as recipes

Powerful Occupational Therapists Christine Peters,2014-07-10 Powerful Occupational Therapists examines the life and times of a small group of occupational therapy leaders and scholars in a post 1950s America to market their profession as one of increasing importance Participating in the 1950s rehabilitation the 1960s equal rights and the 1970s women s movements these innovators being primarily women aimed to define themselves as having professional and scientific authority that was distinct from the male dominated medical model The community of therapists faced challenges such as that of retaining the appearance of being ladylike whilst doing unladylike tasks This book describes the personal experiences of 12 differing occupational therapists and it identifies how a group of them strengthened and developed the profession in the face of diverse challenges This volume would be of interest to those studying occupational therapy women and medicine and the history of medicine This book was originally published as a special issue of Occupational Therapy in Mental Health
