Opportunities for Environmentally Healthy, Inclusive, and Resilient Growth in Mexico's Yucatán Peninsula Ernesto Sánchez-Triana, Jack Ruitenbeek, Santiago Enriquez, Katharina Siegmann, 2019-12-30 Approximately 4.1 million people live in the three states of the Yucatán Peninsula Quintana Roo Yucatán and Campeche Some 30 municipalities are in a coastal territory of almost 2,000 linear kilometers from the oil fields of the Gulf of Mexico to the world renowned beaches of Cancún just north of the second largest barrier reef in the world The peninsula's natural assets also include notable Mayan temples With poverty far from eliminated and with economic development opportunities beckoning in agriculture manufacturing and hydrocarbon development the region is under growing risks from environmental hazards Oil spills hurricanes coral bleaching extreme flooding and erosion have all been experienced in this region over the past decade Based on preliminary identification of environmental priorities Opportunities for Environmentally Healthy Inclusive and Resilient Growth in Mexico's Yucatán Peninsula explores selected topics that aim to inform decision making in the region A general context of integrated coastal zone management is used to explore issues constraints and potential solutions and the role of geomorphology is examined with a view to identifying how shore management plans can contribute to improved coastal management Economic studies find that the main environmental health risks in the peninsula result in more than 1,000 premature deaths every year and in more than 9.36 million days lost to illnesses These risks generate substantial economic losses representing 2.2-3.3 percent of gross regional income Scenarios relating to the economic cost of extreme weather events generate similar levels of damages 1.4-1.5 percent of GDP in 2020 and 1.6-2.3 percent of GDP in 2050 A social accounting matrix examines the social and environmental interconnectedness to the various parts of the economy and an institutional analysis considers the mandates of existing institutions in the states and of the contribution that regulatory measures may make to environmentally sustainable development without undermining economic growth prospects

Measuring the Impact of the Nonprofit Sector Patrice Flynn, Virginia A. Hodgkinson, 2013-11-11

One of the major tasks facing researchers practitioners and funders is the development of empirical tools to measure the inherent worth of nonprofit organizations as well as the sector as a whole Renowned scholars present chapters on the state of the art of performance measurement in the nonprofit sector and seek to establish a framework for a long term research agenda to identify quantify and self assess those qualities that make the nonprofit sector unique

Behavior Settings Phil Schoggen, 1989 Forty years of collaboration in research and writing with Roger G Barker have uniquely qualified the author to revise Barker's classic Ecological Psychology: Concepts and Methods for Studying the Environment of Human Behavior 1968 The author's primary goal has been to provide an up to date and comprehensive description of behavior setting theory and method with sufficient detail and illustration to guide new research applications Barker's presentation of theory and method has been preserved except where changes were required to reflect the advances reported in Barker and Schoggen's Qualities of Community Life 1973 The lengthy report in Ecological Psychology of empirical findings from the study of behavior settings the town of Midwest has been replaced by extensive summaries of the currently available reports of research applications of behavior setting theory Four new chapters have been added a chapter by economist Karl A Fox on the use of behavior settings in social system accounting an article by Barker on behavior settings that have figured prominently in his career a chapter that discusses behavior settings in relation to a number of other concepts in social science and the field of environment and behavior and a final chapter on the need for an eco behavioral science taken from two papers by Barker

Recognition Marketing Planning Theory Franco Archibugi, 2008-01-29 Planning Theory expresses a sound unease about the direction taken by the current analysis and criticism of planning experiences both in the field of economics and in urban and regional planning Instead of seriously revising the technical and scientific shortcomings marking the various problems encountered in the planning experience in both fields academic debates and reflection have instead led to a kind of political interpretation On the basis of the hopelessness of improving the governance of managerial and political planning initiatives planning theory has been reduced to a generic sociological debate on planning itself a debate that freezes planning as a permanently declining engagement To oppose this the present book aims to identify the essential guidelines of a re launch of planning processes and techniques configuring a kind of neo discipline called planology by the author which builds upon a multi disciplinary integration never seen and experimented with until now of economic environmental and sociological approaches a crucial element missing in previous unsuccessful planning attempts Forecasting in the Social and Natural Sciences Kenneth C. Land, Stephen H. Schneider, 2012-12-06 Social and natural scientists often are called upon to produce or participate in the production of forecasts This volume assembles essays that a describe the organizational and political context of applied forecasting b review the state of the art for many forecasting models and methods and c discuss issues of predictability the implications of forecasting errors and model construction linkage and verification The essays should be of particular interest to social and natural scientists concerned with forecasting large scale systems This project had its origins in discussions of social forecasts and forecasting methodologies initiated a few years ago by several social and natural science members of the Social Science Research Council's Committee on Social Indicators It became apparent in these discussions that certain similar problems were confronted in forecasting large scale systems be they social or natural In response the Committee hypothesized that much could be learned through more extended and systematic interchanges among social and natural scientists focusing on the formal methodologies applied in forecasting To put this conjecture to the test the Committee sponsored a conference at the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder Colorado on June 10 13 1984 on forecasting in the social and natural sciences The conference was co chaired by Committee members Kenneth C Land and Stephen H Schneider representing respectively the social and natural science membership of the Committee Support for the conference was provided by a grant to the Council from the Division of Social and Economic Science of the National Science Foundation Global Climate Change and California Joseph B. Knox, Ann Foley Scheuring, 2023-11-15

California's extraordinary ecological and economic diversity has brought it prosperity pollution and overpopulation These factors and the state's national and international ties make California an essential test case for the impact of global climate change temperature increases water shortages more ultraviolet radiation The scientists in this forward looking volume give their best estimates of what the future holds Beginning with an overview by Joseph Knox the book discusses the greenhouse effect the latest climate modeling capabilities the implications of climate change for water resources agriculture biological
