The Central Missouri Hopewell Subsistence Settlement System:

The Central Missouri Hopewell Subsistence-settlement System Marvin Kay, 1974 This study concerns geographically discordant Hopewell settlements in two central Missouri localities and has the primary objectives of defining their chronological phytogeographic subsistence and social relationships in sum those subjects needed for a preliminary evaluation of systemic community adaptations within a varied landscape commonly referred to as a subsistence settlement system These represent the range in size and physiographic placement of Hopewell settlements in the Lamine and Big Bend localities taken from preface Central Missouri Hopewell Subsistence - Settlement System Marvin Kay, 1975

The Prehistory of Missouri Michael John O'Brien, W. Raymond Wood, 1998 The Prehistory of Missouri is a fascinating examination of the objects that were made used and discarded or lost by Missouri's prehistoric inhabitants over a period of more than eleven thousand years Missouri's numerous vegetation zones and its diverse topography encompassed extreme variations forcing prehistoric populations to seek a wide range of adaptations to the natural environment As a result Missouri's archaeological record is highly complex and it has not been fully understood despite the vast amount of fieldwork that has been conducted within the state's borders In this groundbreaking account Michael J O'Brien and W Raymond Wood explore the array of artifacts that have been found in Missouri pinpointing minute variations in form They have documented the ranges in age and distribution of the individual forms explaining why certain forms persisted while others quickly disappeared Organized by chronological periods such as Archaic Woodland and Mississippian the book provides a comprehensive survey of what is currently known about Missouri's prehistoric peoples often revealing how they made their living in an ever changing world The authors have applied rigorous standards of archaeological inquiry Their main objective demonstrating that the archaeological record of Missouri can be explained in scientific terms is accomplished With more than 235 line drawings and photographs including 23 color photos The Prehistory of Missouri will appeal to anyone interested in archaeology particularly in the artifacts and the dates of their manufacture as well as those interested in the dichotomy between interpretation and explanation Intended for the amateur as well as the professional archaeologist this book is sure to be the new standard reference on Missouri's prehistory fulfilling current needs that extend beyond those met by Carl Chapman's earlier classic The Archaeology of Missouri

Indians and Archaeology of Missouri, Revised Edition Carl H. Chapman, Eleanor F. Chapman, 2014-02-10 This expanded edition of Indians and Archaeology of Missouri gives an excellent introduction to the cultural development of Missouri's Indians during the past twelve thousand years Providing a new chapter on the Hunter Foragers of the Dalton period and substantial revision of other chapters to incorporate recent discoveries the Chapmans present knowledge based upon decades of experience with archaeological excavations in an understandable and fascinating form The first edition of Indians and Archaeology of Missouri has been recognized in Missouri and nationally as one of the best books of its kind The Missouri Historical Review called it simply indispensable The Plains Anthropologist added similar praise Clearly written and exceptionally well illustrated it is the answer to the amateur s prayers Archaeology described it as a boon to Missouri s many amateur archaeologists a useful source of information for professionals and interesting reading for the layman Missouri Archaeological Society Research Series ,1976 Prehistoric Cultural Continuity in the Missouri Ozarks: Artifact descriptions and analyses Truman Reservoir Mitigation Project,1993 The Missouri Archaeologist ,2012 Artifact Classification Dwight W Read,2016-09-16 Archaeologists have been developing artifact typologies to understand cultural categories for as long as the discipline has existed Dwight Read examines these attempts to systematize the cultural domains in premodern societies through a historical study of pottery typologies He then offers a methodology for producing classifications that are both salient to the cultural groups that produced them and relevant for establishing cultural categories and timelines for the archaeologist attempting to understand the relationship between material culture and ideational culture of ancient societies This volume is valuable to upper level students and professional archaeologists across the discipline The Dash Reeves Site Andrew C. Fortier,2001 This newest addition to the American Bottom Archaeology series reports on the Dash Reeves site an extensive Middle Woodland habitation site that represents a major floodplain village and locality for the production of stone tools The village area consists of clusters of pits and a dense refuse heap containing hundreds of diagnostic Middle Woodlands artifacts an extensive collection of lamellar blades and blade cores projectile points Hill Lake ceramics a diversity of flake blade and core tools and several exotic Hopewell like pieces including earspool and human figurine fragments Inhabited between 150 A D and 300 A D during the Hill Lake phase Dash Reeves appears to have been an important locus of interaction with peoples far to the south The production of blades at Dash Reeves especially those made of local colorful red and blue Ste Genevieve cherts possibly served as the focal point of a far reaching blade exchange system in the Midwest America the American Bottom Archaeology series documents the excavation of sites affected by the construction of Interstate Highway 270 on the Mississippi River floodplain in Illinois counties across the river from St Louis The series is cosponsored by the Federal Highway Administration and the Illinois Department of Transportation Volumes on individual sites are supplemented by a summary volume on the FAI 270 Project s contribution to the culture history of the Mississippi River Valley Holocene Human Adaptations in the Missouri Prairie-Timberlands ,1995
