The Chinese Community Of Stockton Images Of America:

The Chinese Community of Stockton Sylvia Sun Minnick, 2002 Stockton referred to as Sam Fow by its Chinese community was the third largest metropolitan area leading to the goldfields of California at the turn of the 20th century The Chinese immigrants came from Kwangtung China to find their fortune and instead found a series of restrictive laws aimed at keeping them from participating in the development of the burgeoning frontier town Their story is here in over 200 vintage images of community life and resilience Despite legislation such as the Foreign Miners taxes and the California Alien Land Act and most recently the construction of the Crosstown Freeway combined with the redevelopment project that disseminated the heart of Chinatown the Chinese of this area were major contributors to California and Stockton's economy They have maintained a balance between their heritage of familial and religious obligations and western education and activities Included are photographs dating from the late 1920s of traditional Chinese associations and more recent community activities These images showcase once thriving businesses educational and religious efforts and familial milestones

Remarkable Women of Stockton Mary Jo Gohlke, 2014-03-04 Women played prominent roles during Stockton's growth from gold rush tent city to California leader in transportation agriculture and manufacturing Heiresses reigned in the city's nineteenth century mansions In the twentieth century women fought for suffrage and helped start local colleges run steamship lines build food empires and break the school district's color barrier Writers like Sylvia Sun Minnick and Maxine Hong Kingston chronicled the town Dolores Huerta co founded the United Farm Workers Harriet Chalmers Adams caught the travel bug on walks with her father and Dawn Mabalon rescued the history of the Filipino population Join Mary Jo Gohlke news writer turned librarian as she eloquently captures the stories of twenty two triumphant and successful women who led a little river city into state prominence

China Through American Eyes: Early Depictions Of The Chinese People And Culture In The Us Print Media Wenxian Zhang, 2018-02-20 Cultural understanding between the United States and China has been a long and complex process The period from the mid nineteenth century to the early twentieth century is not only a critical era in modern Chinese history but also the peak time of illustrated news reporting in the United States Besides images from newspapers and journals this collection also contains pictures about China and the Chinese published in books brochures commercial advertisements campaign posters postcards etc Together they have documented colourful portrayals of the Chinese and their culture by the U S print media and their evolution from ethnic curiosity stereotyping and racial prejudice to social awareness reluctant understanding and eventual acceptance Since these publications represent different positions in American politics they can help contemporary readers develop a more comprehensive understanding of major events in modern American and Chinese histories such as the cause and effect of the Chinese Exclusion Act and the power struggles behind the development of the Open Door Policy at the turn of the twentieth century This collection of images has essentially formed a rich visual resource that is both diverse and intriguing and as primary source documents they carry
