

The background of the slide is a rich, detailed painting. It depicts a lush garden scene. In the center, a figure, possibly a personification of Spring or a deity, stands wearing a long, flowing white dress adorned with green leaves and small white flowers. This figure holds a long, thin wooden staff. Surrounding this central figure are several children and cherubs. Some are playing with flowers, while others are in various poses of joy and movement. The garden is filled with a variety of flowers, including white daisies, yellow blooms, and red flowers. The overall style is characteristic of the Northern Renaissance, with fine detail and a vibrant color palette.

narrated by Aesop and for a long time were handed down by the uncertain channel of oral tradition Socrates is mentioned by Plato as having employed his time while in prison awaiting the return of the sacred ship from Delphos which was to be the signal of his death in turning some of these fables into verse but he thus versified only such as he remembered Demetrius Phalereus a philosopher at Athens about 300 B C is said to have made the first collection of these fables Phaedrus a slave by birth or by subsequent misfortunes and admitted by Augustus to the honors of a freedman imitated many of these fables in Latin iambics about the commencement of the Christian era Aphthonius a rhetorician of Antioch A D 315 wrote a treatise on and converted into Latin prose some of these fables This translation is the more worthy of notice as it illustrates a custom of common use both in these and in later times The rhetoricians and philosophers were accustomed to give the Fables of Aesop as an exercise to their scholars not only inviting them to discuss the moral of the tale but also to practice and to perfect themselves thereby in style and rules of grammar by making for themselves new and various versions of the fables Ausonius the friend of the Emperor Valentinian and the latest poet of eminence in the Western Empire has handed down some of these fables in verse which Julianus Titianus a contemporary writer of no great name translated into prose Avienus also a contemporary of Ausonius put some of these fables into Latin elegiacs which are given by Nevelet in a book we shall refer to hereafter and are occasionally incorporated with the editions of Phaedrus Seven centuries elapsed before the next notice is found of the Fables of Aesop
