The historian between the ethnologist and the futurologist Jérôme [Ed.] Dumoulin, Conference on the Historian Between the Ethnologist and the Futurologist 1971, 2018-12-03 No detailed description available for The historian between the ethnologist and the futurologist

In the Workshop of History François Furet, 1984-12 Those concerned with the practice of history as a discipline and as an intellectual activity will be intrigued by the view of history that François Furet offers in this collection of essays After twenty five years as a professional historian at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes and in the ranks of the Annales school Furet sets out to reexamine the methodological and intellectual cleavages that exist today among historians Furet views history as a field bounded at each end by two ideal types One end is concerned with the history of periods and with the empiricism of facts rather than received ideas At the other end is problem oriented history which substitutes for the supposed coherence of a period the analytical examination of a question Furet's own work leans toward the second more conceptually oriented kind of historiography The essays in this volume most of them never before published in English illustrate the breadth of his approach Furet's discussion ranges through Tocqueville's conceptual system to present day America from the origins of history in France to the Jewish experience in the late twentieth century Among Furet's recurrent themes is the contention that the historian constructs the object or field of his research rather than receiving it from the past

Annales Stuart Clark, 1999 This collection reprints key articles written within the past 30 years on the Annales school their journal their influence on history historiography and other academic fields

Anthropological Conversations Caroline B. Brettell, 2014-10-23 Cultural anthropologists can be an intellectually adventurous crowd open even eager to building bridges across disciplines in the name of understanding human behavior and the human experience more broadly In this first of its kind book Caroline Brettell explores the cross disciplinary conversations that have engaged cultural anthropologists both past and present Brettell highlights a handful of conversations between the discipline of anthropology on the one hand and history geography literature biology psychology and demography on the other She also pinpoints how these exchanges address three enduring issues of anthropological concern the temporal and the spatial dimensions of human experience the scientific and the humanistic dimensions of the anthropological enterprise and the individual and the group population as units of analysis in research Anthropological Conversations offers detailed accounts of particular ethnographic methodologies and findings and the theoretical trends informing them as a means of grasping the big picture issues Brettell clearly shows that by engaging with other fields cultural anthropologists have been able to think more deeply about what they mean by culture through this book she invites readers to continue the conversation

Art History Through the Camera's Lens Helene E. Roberts, 2013-09-13 Photography of art has served as a basis for the reconstruction of works of art and as a vehicle for the dissemination and reinterpretation of art This book provides the first definitive treatment of the subject with essays from noted authorities in the fields of art history architecture and photography The essays explore the many meanings of photography as documentation for the art historian inspiration for the artist and as a means of critical interpretation of works of art Art History Through the Camera's Lens will be important reading for students historians librarians and curators of the visual arts

The Future of the World Jenny Andersson, 2018-07-25 The Future of the World is devoted to the intriguing field of study which emerged after World War Two futurism or futurology Jenny Andersson explains how futurist scholars and researchers imagined the Cold War and post Cold War world and the tools and methods they would use to influence and change that world Futurists were a motley crew of Cold War warriors nuclear scientists journalists and peace activists Some argued it should be a closed sphere of science defined by delimited probabilities They were challenged by alternative notions of the future as a potentially open realm Futurism also drew on an eclectic range of repertoires some of which were deduced from positivist social science mathematics and nuclear physics and some of which sprung from alternative forms of knowledge in science fiction journalism or religion These different forms of prediction laid very different claims to how accurately futures could be known and what kind of control could be exerted over what was yet to come The Future of the World carefully examines these different engagements with the future and inscribes them in the intellectual history of the post war period Using unexplored archival collections The Future of the World reconstructs the Cold War networks of futurologists and futurists

Re-Figuring Hayden White Frank Ankersmit, Ewa Domańska, Hans Kellner, 2009-06-24 Produced in honor of White's eightieth birthday Re-Figuring Hayden White testifies to the lasting importance of White's innovative work which firmly reintegrates historical studies with literature and the humanities The book is a major reconsideration of the historian's contributions and influence by an international group of leading scholars from a variety of disciplines. Individual essays address the key concepts of White's intellectual career including tropes narrative figuralism and the historical sublime while exploring the place of White's work in the philosophy of history postmodernism and ethics. They also discuss his role as historian and teacher and apply his ideas to specific historical events. French Historical Method Traian Stoianovich, 2019-05-15. No detailed description available for French Historical Method. American Anthropology, 1971-1995 Regna Darnell, 2002-01-01. American anthropology in the late twentieth century interrogated and depicted the worlds of others past and present in subtle and incisive ways while increasingly questioning its own authority to do so. Marxist symbolic and structuralist thought shaped the fieldwork and conclusions of many researchers around the globe. Practicing anthropology blossomed and grew rapidly as a subdiscipline in its own right. There emerged a keener appreciation of both the history of the discipline and the histories of those studied. Archaeologists witnessed a resurgence of interest in the concept of culture. The American Anthropologist also made systematic efforts to represent the field as a whole with biological anthropology and linguistics particularly adept at crossing subdiscipline boundaries. Proliferation of specialized areas within sociocultural anthropology encouraged work across the subdisciplines. The thirty selections in this volume reflect the notable trends and accomplishments in American anthropology during the closing decades of the millennium. An introduction by Regna Darnell offers a historical background and critical context that enable readers to better understand the changes and continuity in American anthropology during this time. Hayden White Herman Paul, 2011-08-08. This new book offers a clear and accessible exposition of Hayden White's thought. In an engaging and wide-ranging analysis Herman Paul discusses White's core ideas and traces the development of these ideas from the mid 1950s to the present. Starting with White's medievalist research and youthful fascination for French existentialism Paul shows how White became increasingly convinced that historical writing is a moral activity. He goes on to argue that the critical concepts that have secured White's fame trope plot discourse figural realism all stem from his desire to explicate the moral claims and perceptions underlying historical writing. White emerges as a passionate thinker a restless rebel against scientism and a defender of existentialist humanist values. This innovative introduction will appeal to students and scholars across the humanities and help develop a critical understanding of an increasingly important thinker.

A History of Indian Literature: 1911-1956, struggle for freedom : triumph and tragedy Sisir Kumar Das, 2005. Presents the Indian literatures not in isolation in one another but as related components in a larger complex conspicuous by the existence of age old multilingualism and a variety of literary traditions. Metafiction Mark Currie, 2014-07-15. Metafiction is one of the most distinctive features of postwar fiction appearing in the work of novelists as varied as Eco Borges Martin Amis and Julian Barnes. It comprises two elements firstly cause the increasing interpenetration of professional literary criticism and the practice of writing and secondly effect an emphasis on the playing with styles and forms resulting from an enhanced self consciousness and awareness of the elusiveness of meaning and the limitations of the realist form Dr Currie's volume examines first the two components of metafiction with practical illustrations from the work of such writers as Derrida and Foucault A final section then provides the view of metafiction as seen by metafictional writers themselves
