Reform of the Family Division of the District of Columbia Superior Court United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Reform. Subcommittee on the District of Columbia, 2001      The End of Family Court Jane M. Spinak, 2025-08-05 Explores the failures of family court and calls for immediate and permanent change At the turn of the twentieth century American social reformers created the first juvenile court They imagined a therapeutic court where informality specially trained public servants and a kindly all knowing judge would assist children and families But the dream of a benevolent means of judicial problem solving was never realized A century later children and families continue to be failed by this deeply flawed court The End of Family Court rejects the foundational premise that family court can do good when intervening in family life and challenges its endless reinvention to survive Jane M Spinak illustrates how the procedures and policies of modern family court are deeply entwined in a heritage of racism a profound disdain for poverty and assimilationist norms intent on fixing children and families who are different And the court s interventionist goals remain steeped in an approach to equity and well being that demands individual rather than collective responsibility for the security and welfare of families Spinak proposes concrete steps toward abolishing the court shifting most family supports out of the court s sphere vastly reducing the types and number of matters that need court intervention and ensuring that any case that requires legal adjudication has the due process protections of a court of law She calls for strategies that center trusting and respecting the abilities of communities to create and sustain meaningful solutions for families An abolitionist approach in turn celebrates a radical imagination that embraces and supports all families in a fair and equal economic and political democracy      Juvenile Confinement Institutions and Correctional Systems United States.
