Mather, Linus Pierpont Brockett,1847 The American's Guide ,1855 The Company They Keep Neal Devins, Lawrence Baum, 2019-01-07

Are Supreme Court justices swayed by the political environment that surrounds them Most people think yes and they point to the influence of the general public and the other branches of government on the Court It is not that simple however As the eminent law and politics scholars Neal Devins and Lawrence Baum show in The Company They Keep justices today are reacting far more to subtle social forces in their own elite legal world than to pressure from the other branches of government or mass public opinion In particular the authors draw from social psychology research to show why Justices are apt to follow the lead of the elite social networks that they are a part of The evidence is strong Justices take cues primarily from the people who are closest to them and whose approval they care most about political social and professional elites In an era of strong partisan polarization elite social networks are largely bifurcated by partisan and ideological loyalties and the Justices reflect that division The result is a Court in which the Justices ideological stances reflect the dominant views in the appointing president's party Justices such as Clarence Thomas and Ruth Bader Ginsburg live largely in a milieu populated by like minded elites Today's partisanship on the Court also stems from the emergence of conservative legal networks such as the Federalist Society that reinforce the conservative leanings of Republican appointees For the Warren and Burger Courts elite social networks were dominated by liberal elites and not divided by political party or ideology A fascinating examination of the factors that shape decision making The Company They Keep will reshape our understanding of how political polarization occurs on the contemporary Supreme Court American's Guide ,1864 Acts Passed at the ...
