Dear Mr. Allen,

Re: First Warning – Repeated Tardiness

We are writing to formally address a concern regarding your recent pattern of tardiness, which does not meet the standards expected within your role. This letter serves as your first warning, and you must take this matter seriously to avoid further disciplinary actions.

Description of the Issue

Between December 1, 2059, and December 20, 2059, you were late to work on five separate occasions without proper notification or a valid reason. This behavior disrupts project workflows and team collaboration.

Reference to Company Policy

As outlined in Employee Handbook, section 4.2, all employees are required to adhere to scheduled work hours. Repeated tardiness, as demonstrated, is a violation of this policy and negatively affects team productivity and project deadlines.

Expectations and Consequences

We expect immediate improvement in your attendance. Specifically, you are required to arrive at work by your designated start time of 9:00 AM daily. Any future instances of tardiness must be communicated in advance with a valid reason. Failure to comply with these expectations may lead to further disciplinary actions, up to and including termination of employment.
