Revising Fiction, Fact, and Faith Nathaniel Goldberg,Chris

Gavaler,2020-07-01 This book addresses how our revisionary practices account for relations between texts and how they are read It offers an overarching philosophy of revision concerning works of fiction fact and faith revealing unexpected insights about the philosophy of language the metaphysics of fact and fiction and the history and philosophy of science and religion Using the novels of J R R Tolkien as exemplars the authors introduce a fundamental distinction between the purely physical and the linguistic aspects of texts They then demonstrate how two competing theories of reference descriptivism and referentialism are instead constitutive of a single semantic account needed to explain all kinds of revision The authors also propose their own metaphysical foundations of fiction and fact The next part of the book brings the authors philosophy of revision into dialogue with Thomas Kuhn s famous analysis of factual and specifically scientific change It also discusses a complex episode in the history of paleontology demonstrating how scientific and popular texts can diverge over time Finally the authors expand their philosophy of revision to religious texts arguing that rather than being distinct such texts are always read as other kinds that faith tends to be more important as evidence for religious texts than for others and that the latter explains why religious communities tend to have remarkable historical longevity Revising Fiction Fact and Faith offers a unique and comprehensive account of the philosophy of revision It will be of interest to a wide range of scholars and advanced students working in philosophy of language metaphysics philosophy of literature literary theory and criticism and history and philosophy of science and religion

Humankind Alexander H Harcourt, 2015-06-15 Where did the human species originate why are tropical peoples much more diverse than those at polar latitudes and why can only Japanese peoples digest seaweed In Humankind U C Davis professor Alexander Harcourt answers these questions and more as he explains how the expansion of the human species around the globe and our interaction with our environment explains much about why humans differ from one region of the world to another not only biologically but culturally What effects have other species had on the distribution of humans around the world and we in turn on their distribution And how have human populations affected each other's geography even existence For the first time in a single book Alexander Harcourt brings these topics together to help us understand why we are what we are where we are It turns out that when one looks at humanity's expansion around the world and in the biological explanations for our geographic diversity we humans are often just another primate just another species Humanity's distribution around the world and the type of organism we are today has been shaped by the same biogeographical forces that shape other species
