Meyer,1996-02-23 At a level accessible to the general reader this balanced and non polemical book describes the changes human activities have produced in the global environment from 300 years ago to today Fundamentals of Physical Geography David John Briggs, Peter Smithson, 1986 This primary text designed for undergraduate courses provides a modern approach to the fundamentals of physical geography by linking process form and effect The authors explore the natural world as a series of systems and consider the relationship between the different components of each They examine in turn the atmosphere hydrosphere lithosphere and biosphere providing a thorough discussion of their composition and the ways in which their interaction forms our global environment Throughout the authors demonstrate the role of humanity in influencing the physical environment and the ways in which we are affected by our surroundings Clearly written and lavishly illustrated with maps drawings photographs and charts Fundamentals of Physical Geography is an ideal text Cultural Landscapes and Environmental Change Lesley Head, 2017-09-25 Cultural landscapes are usually understood within physical geography as those transformed by human action As human influence on the earth increases advances in palaeocological reconstruction have also allowed for new interpretations of the evidence for the earliest human impacts on the environment It is essential that such evidence is examined in the context of modern trends in social sciences and humanities This stimulating new book argues that convergence of the two approaches can provide a more holistic understanding of long term physical and human processes Split into two major sections this book attempts to bridge the gap between the sciences and humanities The first section provides an analysis of the methodological tools employed in examining processes of environmental change Empirical research in the fields of palaeocology and Quaternary studies is combined with the latest theoretical views of nature and landscape occurring in cultural geography archaeology and anthropology The author examines the way in which environmental management decisions are made The book then moves on to discuss the relevance of this perspective to contemporary issues through a wide variety of international case studies including World Heritage protection landscape preservation indigenous people and cultural tourism Environments in a Changing World John Huckle, Adrian Martin, 2014-09-19 While there is no shortage of books on the environment there are few introductory texts that outline the social theory that informs human geographical approaches to the interactions between ecology and society Students arriving at university often lack the understanding of history economics politics sociology and philosophy that contemporary human geography requires Environments in a Changing World addresses this deficit providing foundation knowledge in a form that is accessible to first year students and applied to the understanding of both contemporary environmental issues and the challenge of sustainability Students are challenged to develop and defend their own ethical and political positions on sustainability and respond to the need for new forms of ecological citizenship Human Impact on Environment and Sustainable Development in Africa Michael B.K. Darkoh, 2018-12-20 This title was first published in 2003 Based on a blend of knowledge and perspectives from a variety of disciplines this volume examines the human environment interaction in Africa with a focus on the economic social and political processes that generate environmental change and problems in this region Currently there are controversies over and challenges to such concepts and issues as environment human relationships ecological resilience decertification sustainable development globalization and North South dialogue This book draws upon past and present research findings to discuss these issues It features an examination of the characteristics processes and patterns of environmental crises an analysis of the principal issues and challenges facing policy makers and implementers and the promotion of awareness of theoretical empirical and comparative research The volume not only seeks to answer some of the old questions but also open up new ones for further discussion Atmosphere, Weather and

Global Climate Change and Human Impacts on Forest Ecosystems J. Puhe, B. Ulrich, 2012-12-06 The inclusion of forests as potential biological sinks in the Kyoto Protocol to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change UNFCCC in 1997 has attracted international attention and again has put scientific and political focus on the world s forests regarding their state and development The international discussion induced by the Kyoto Protocol has clearly shown that not only the tropical rain forests are endangered by man s activities but also that the forest ecosystems of boreal temperate mediterranean and subtropical regions have been drastically modified Deforestation on a large scale burning over exploitation and the degradation of the biological diversity are well known symptoms in forests all over the world This negative development happens in spite of the already existing knowledge of the benefits of forests on global energy and water regimes the biogeochemical cycling of carbon and other elements as well as on the biological and cultural diversity The reasons why man does not take care of forests properly are manifold and complex and there is no easy solution how to change the existing negative trends One reason that makes it so difficult to assess the impacts of human activity on the future development of forests is the large time scale in which forests react ranging from decades to centuries

Principles of International Environmental Law Philippe Sands, 2003-10-09 This second edition of Philippe Sand s leading textbook on international environmental law provides a clear and authoritative introduction to the subject revised to December 2002 It considers relevant new topics including the Kyoto Protocol genetically modified organisms oil pollution chemicals etc and will remain the most comprehensive account of the principles and rules relating to environmental protection and the conservation of natural resources In addition to the key material from the 1992 Rio Declaration and subsequent developments Sands also covers topics including the legal and institutional framework the field s historic development and standards for general application This will continue to be an invaluable resource for both students and practitioners alike The Earth as Transformed by Human Action B. L. Turner,William C. Clark,Robert W. Kates,John F. Richards,Jessica T. Mathews,William B.

Meyer,1993-01-29 The Earth as Transformed by Human Action is the culmination of a mammoth undertaking involving the examination of the toll our continual strides forward technical and social take on our world The purpose of such a study is to document the changes in the biosphere that have taken place over the last 300 years to contrast global patterns of change to those appearing on a regional level and to explain the major human forces that have driven these changes The first section deals strictly with the major human forces of the past 300 years and the second is a detailed account of the transformations of the global environment wrought by human action The final section examines a range of perspectives and theories that purport to explain human actions with regard to the biosphere Africa in a Changing Global Environment Mutanga, Shingirirai Savious,Simelane, Thokozani,Pophiwa, Nedson ,2013-10-20 Africa is one continent severely affected by the ravaging effects of global environment change yet it is least responsible for this The continent s rural and urban poor are particularly vulnerable to reduced agricultural production worsening food security increased incidence of both flooding and drought spreading of disease and heightening risk of conflict over scarce land and water resources As such this timely book consisting of chapters authored by scholars from multidisciplinary backgrounds provides the reader a variety of contexts from which to understand the impacts of global environmental change and how affected African communities are adapting an mitigating the scourge In addition it discusses different models for mitigation and adaptation applicable to local contexts

Atmosphere, Weather and Climate Roger Graham Barry,Richard J. Chorley,1992 An introduction to weather processes and climatic conditions Beginning with a discussion of atmospheric composition and energy the authors turn to manifestations and circulation of atmospheric moisture including atmospheric stability and precipitation patterns in space and time Atmosphere Weather and Climate provides a thorough introduction to weather processes and climatic conditions Since the last edition the recognition of the reality and possible effects of human activities on the environment has revolutionized attitudes to the study of atmosphere and of world climate Climate and Food Security ,1989 Food security and agricultural research Climatic variability and crop yields Climatic vulnerability of major food crops Climatic variability and factors of agricultural production Climate modeling and climate change Social and economic implications of climate food interaction Strategies for coping with climatic fluctuation and change
