Folmer, Jan Janssen, 2013-03-09 In September 1977 a Regional Science Symposium was held at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Groningen in the Netherlands Organized because of the recent establishment at the Faculty of Economics of a group that is engaged in teaching and research in the field of regional science the aim of the symposium was to make university members more familiar with regional science and to introduce the newly created group to the national and international scene Two separate topics were selected of potential interest to both researchers and policy makers The first spatial inequalities and regional development was chosen because of its central place in regional science Authors from several disciplines were asked to approach this theme from a general policy orientated point of view This ensured the enlightenment of the various dimensions of spatial inequality and its implications for regional policy The results have been collected in the volume Spatial Inequalities and Regional Development The second theme focused on spatial statistical analysis This branch of statistics is a relatively new one which receives growing attention among researchers in the field of applied regional science The meeting on this topic concentrated on new results of research on the use of appropriate statistical and econometric methods for analyzing spatial data The papers concerned have been collected into another volume Exploratory and Explanatory Statistical Analysis of Spatial Data Trams or Tailfins? Jan L. Logemann, 2012-11-28 In the years that followed World War II both the United States and the newly formed West German republic had an opportunity to remake their economies Since then much has been made of a supposed Americanization of European consumer societies in Germany and elsewhere Arguing against these foggy notions Jan L Logemann takes a comparative look at the development of postwar mass consumption in West Germany and the United States and the emergence of discrete consumer modernities In Trams or Tailfins Logemann explains how the decisions made at this crucial time helped to define both of these economic superpowers in the second half of the twentieth century While Americans splurged on private cars and bought goods on credit in suburban shopping malls Germans rebuilt public transit and developed pedestrian shopping streets in their city centers choices that continue to shape the quality and character of life decades later Outlining the abundant differences in the structures of consumer society consumer habits and the role of public consumption in these countries Logemann reveals the many subtle ways that the spheres of government society and physical space define how we live Philippine Journal of Public Administration, 1983 Civic Affairs, 1968 The Effects of National and International Economic Policies on Regional Disparities Hayriye Gülderen İsanlar Avcısoy, 1993 *Proceedings of the ...
