The Changing Role of National Development Banks in Africa Joshua Yindenaba Abor, 2023-08-28 This book examines the changing role of national development banks NDBs in Africa It presents a comprehensive overview of NDBs in Africa examining their key characteristics theoretical underpinnings and growing importance to African economies The book fully examines the role of NDBs and their potential to support development goals address gaps in finance left by underdeveloped capital markets and mobilize resources from the public and private sectors to encourage new long term investments Chapters cover the historical background and theoretical rationale for NDBs the contemporary role of NDBs including their role in sustainable development climate finance initiatives and infrastructure development funding sources business models monitoring and impact evaluation and corporate governance risk management and regulation Case studies are also included to demonstrate the individual contributions of NDBs to several national economies The book contributes to the limited literature in this area by providing a detailed resource on NDBs for scholars students policymakers and regulators working in the areas of development finance and banking Global Development Finance 2004 - The Changing Face of Finance ,2004 This publication contains the World Banks annual review of global financial conditions facing developing countries This volume the first part of a two volume set looks at recent trends in and prospects for financial flows to developing countries It highlights sources of vulnerability and risk in the recovery of private finance flows including the likely increases in interest rates in advanced economies and volatility in major currencies and financial markets as well as problems of macroeconomic management in developing countries It also presents the World Banks assessment of the global outlook in the light of the recent economic recovery Please note that the two volume set including summary and country data tables for 136 countries as well as summary data for regions and income groups is also available separately ISBN 0821357417 Foreign Direct Investment and Human Development Olivier de Schutter,Johan F. M. Swinnen,Jan Wouters,2013 This book presents original research that examines the growth of international investment agreements as a means to attract foreign direct investment FDI and considers how this affects the ability of capital importing countries to pursue their development goals The hope of countries signing such treaties is that foreign capital will accelerate transfers of technologies create employment and benefit the local economy through various types of linkages But do international investment agreements in fact succeed in attracting foreign direct investment And if so are the sovereignty costs involved worth paying In particular are these costs such that they risk undermining the very purpose of attracting investors which is to promote human development in the host country This book uses both economic and legal analysis to answer these questions that have become central to discussions on the impact of economic globalization on human rights and human development It explains the dangers of developing countries being tempted to signal their willingness to attract investors by providing far reaching protections to investors rights that would annul or at least seriously diminish the benefits they have a right to expect from the arrival of FDI It examines a variety of tools that could be used by capital exporting countries and by capital importing countries alike to ensure that FDI works for development and that international investment agreements contribute to that end This uniquely interdisciplinary study located at the intersection of development economics international investment law and international human rights is written in an accessible language and should attract the attention of anyone who cares about the role of private investment in supporting the efforts of poor countries to climb up the development ladder Official Supported Export Credits Developments and Prospects International Monetary Fund,1990-03-01 This paper presents report on a number of countries in Asia that have made substantial use of agency credits including the quasi concessional financing available through mixed credit s Through their willingness to grant comprehensive relief on a case by case basis official creditors have responded flexibly to the needs of individual countries

The ability of export credit agencies to also provide substantial new financing to rescheduling countries has depended on the strategy of debt subordination achieved through fixing cutoff dates. As to the role of export credits at present when the debt strategy's continuing emphasis on new money flows is being supplemented by debt reduction the debt subordination strategy followed by export credit agencies has left them well positioned to provide necessary new financing for middle income countries pursuing strong adjustment. In heavily indebted low income countries whose needs for project finance should most appropriately be met by concessional finance export credit agencies continue to play an important role in supporting essential short term credits.

Research Activities of the IMF, January 1991-December 1999 International Monetary Fund, 2000-01-01

Research activity in the IMF emphasizes the links between the organization's policy and operational concerns. The main objectives of research is IMF staff understanding of policy and operational issues relevant to the institution and to improve the analytical quality of the work prepared for management and the Executive Board and the advice provided to member countries. The scope of research in the IMF is defined by the purposes and functions of the institution. In order to foster innovation and ensure quality control the IMF makes much of its research available outside the institution and encourages staff to interact with academia and other research organizations through conferences seminars and occasional joint research projects. The visiting scholar's program has also enhanced the quality of research done in the IMF. This program brings in leading members of the economics profession from around the world to assist in the preparation of papers for the Executive Board and to conduct research on IMF related issues.
