The China Hands:

The China Hands Ely Jacques Kahn, 1976 The China Hands' Legacy Paul Gordon Lauren, 2019-06-18 A group of American Foreign Service officers and journalists in China during and after World War II collectively known as the China Hands were accused of disloyalty and in some cases treason for reporting on events as they saw them Faced with the ethical dilemma of what a public official's responsibility is when one believes one's government's China Hand John Paton Davies, Jr., 2012-01-31 At the height of the McCarthyite hysteria of the 1950s John Paton Davies Jr was summoned to the State Department one morning and fired His offense The career diplomat had counseled the U S government during World War II that the Communist forces in China were poised to take over the country which they did in 1949 Davies joined the thousands of others who became the victims of a political maelstrom that engulfed the country and deprived the United States of the wisdom and guidance of an entire generation of East Asian diplomats and scholars The son of American missionaries Davies was born in China at the turn of the twentieth century Educated in the United States he joined the ranks of the newly formed Foreign Service in the 1930s and returned to China where he would remain until nearly the end of World War II During that time he became one of the first Americans to meet and talk with the young revolutionary known as Mao Zedong He documented the personal excesses and political foibles of Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai shek As a political aide to General Joseph V. "Joe" Stilwell the wartime commander of the Allied forces in East and South Asia he traveled widely in the region meeting with colonial India's Nehru and Gandhi to gauge whether their animosity to British rule would translate into support for Japan Davies ended the war serving in Moscow with George F Kennan the architect of America's policy toward the Soviet Union Kennan found in Davies a lifelong friend and colleague Neither however was immune to the virulent anticommunism of the immediate postwar years China Hand is the story of a man who captured with wry and judicious insight the times in which he lived both as observer and as actor The Old China Hands Charles Grandison Finney, 1961 China Hands and Old Cantons John M. Carroll, 2021-10-12 Early encounters between Britain and China are best known for igniting the First Opium War Yet they also produced an enormous archive of writings by Britons who spent time in China Frustrated with the restrictions imposed by the Manchu rulers of the Qing Empire and unable to live or travel elsewhere apart from Canton and Macao these diplomats traders missionaries travelers and military officers devoted thousands of pages to understanding China its people and their civilization In China Hands and Old Cantons John M Carroll draws on this wealth of memoirs ethnographic studies travel accounts narratives of military action translations and newspaper articles to trace Britons' wide ranging often thoughtful perspectives on China long before anyone considered going to war They discussed almost everything they saw and speculated about much of what they could not see including the size of China's massive population the extent of infanticide the origins and practice of foot binding and the legality and morality of the opium trade They claimed that only those who had been there could truly understand the Middle Kingdom and that their firsthand experience gave them and their publications an advantage over those in Britain and elsewhere Carroll brings a seminal period in the Anglo Chinese relationship which revolved around tea and opium to life through the words of those who experienced it intimately Old China Hands and the Foreign Office Nathan Albert Pelcovits,1969 Carl Crow - A Tough Old China Hand Paul French,2006-10-01 Carl Crow arrived in Shanghai in 1911 and made the city his home for the next quarter of a century working there as a journalist newspaper proprietor and groundbreaking adman He also did stints as a hostage negotiator emergency police sergeant gentleman farmer go between for the American government and propagandist As his career progressed so did the fortunes of Shanghai The city transformed itself from a dull colonial backwater when Crow arrived to the thriving and ruthless cosmopolitan metropolis of the 1930s when Crow wrote his pioneering book 400 Million Customers that encouraged a flood of businesses into the China market in an intriguing foreshadowing of today s boom Among Crow s exploits were attending the negotiations in Peking that led to the fall of the Qing Dynasty getting a scoop on Japanese interference in China during the First World War negotiating the release of a group of Western hostages from a mountain bandit lair and being one of the first Westerners to journey up the Burma Road during the Second World War He met most of the major figures of the time including Sun Yat sen Chiang Kai shek the Soong sisters and Mao s second in command Zhou En lai During the Second World War he worked for American intelligence alongside Owen Lattimore coordinating US policies to support China against Japan The story of this one exceptional man gives us a rich view of Shanghai and China during those tempestuous years This is a book for all with an interest in Shanghai and China of this period and those with an interest in the development of journalism and business there China Hand Ruth Pennington Paget,2005-08 China Hand reveals Chinese culture and the infrastructure of China s economic success
