The Fauns Folly:

The Faun in the Garden: Michelangelo and the Poetic Origins of Italian Renaissance Art , The House of the Faun Carolyn Smith,2006-12 In Pompeii s beautiful House of the Vettii thirteen year old Ariana works as a kitchen slave Unbeknownst to her she is the daughter of her master Claudius Vettius a wealthy wine merchant Ariana must deal with the smoldering jealousy of Claudius s wife Julia and the misplaced ardor of her half brother Marcus a handsome teenage rebel Not far from the House of the Vettii is the stately House of the Faun notable for the bronze statue of a dancing faun a mythical woodland creature at the center of its spacious atrium The master s son Gaius is almost fifteen and hopes to follow in the footsteps of his father an official in the city government When Ariana is sent to the House of the Faun to serve as a maid she and Gaius meet and fall in love But they know that a slave girl and a government official s son have little chance of a future together Numerous obstacles stand in their path not the least of which is Marcus s jealousy An absorbing and passionate tale The House of the Faun tells a story of young love set against the intriguing backdrop of ancient Pompeii his versatility while deeply engaging with historic literary dialogues and the tensions of post war sentimentality Robert Nichols 1893 1944 was a notable figure in early 20th century English literature often associated with the Georgian poets His experiences during World War I profoundly influenced his writing instilling a sense of urgency and introspection that echoes throughout this collection Nichols s fascination with myth and the natural world combined with his keen philosophical insights informs his poetry and sets the stage for a profound exploration of human emotion and experience in the face of tumultuous societal changes Ardours and Endurances is highly recommended for readers seeking a contemplative and immersive poetic experience Nichols s work not only illuminates the human condition but also serves as an elegant reflection on the interconnectedness of life and art making this collection an essential addition to any literary enthusiast s library

Optical Impersonality Christina Walter,2014-07-08 Examines modernist writers efforts to map the social implications of an evolving science of vision and visual culture Western accounts of human vision before the nineteenth century tended to separate the bodily eye from the rational mind This model gave way in the mid nineteenth century to one in which the thinking subject perceiving body perceptual object and material world could not be so easily separated Christina Walter explores how this new physiology of vision provoked writers to reconceive the relations among image text sight and subjectivity Walter focuses in particular on the ways in which modernist writers such as H D Mina Loy D H Lawrence and T S Eliot adapted modern optics and visual culture to develop an alternative to the self or person as a model of the human subject Critics have long seen modernists as being concerned with an impersonal form of writing that rejects the earlier Romantic notion that literature was a direct expression of its author s personality Walter argues that scholars have misunderstood aesthetic impersonality as an evacuation of the person when it is instead an interrogation of what exactly goes into a personality She shows that modernist impersonality embraced the embodied and incoherent notion of the human subject that resulted from contemporary physiological science and traces the legacy of that impersonality in current affect theory Optical Impersonality will appeal to scholars and advanced students of modernist literature and visual culture and to those interested in the intersections of art literature science and technology
