The Feather and the Furrow Chris Knights, Robin Page, 2002      Translating Nature Terminology Wojtek Kasprzak, 2011-05-25 Translating Nature Terminology hopes to fill a vacuum in the market combining practical advice for translators with aspects of linguistics and natural sciences It is a response to the growing popularity of bilingual Polish English publications on nature in Poland which however abound in mistranslated nature terminology Using cognitivism based analysis it traces the vagaries of categorisation of the natural world within one language as well as interlingually with a view to helping translators find suitable equivalents of concepts and terms representing them Translators can learn for instance when overspecification underspecification or domestication are justified and when they become a translation error what to do with the names of cultivars or in what context one should render turzycowisko as tall sedge swamp and where as sedge fen The book also demonstrates that terminological correctness is not only a must for informative texts but it is often indispensable to ensure the coherence of literary works It pays particular attention to the penetration of folk terms into specialist texts and vice versa The reliability of dictionaries both general and specialist is called into question and keeping in touch with up to date professional sources is recommended instead All the above claims are thoroughly researched and amply exemplified      The Hedgerows Heaped with May Stephen Moss, 2012-10-18 An exploration of everything the countryside means to us from a hundred years of the Telegraph s archive The Telegraph is as its former editor Max Hastings identified more than any other national broadsheet the newspaper of the countryside which over the years has been written about in its pages by such distinguished writers as J H B Peel John Betjeman and W F Deedes alongside eminent modern naturalists like Richard Mabey and even unlikely proponents of the rural life like Boris Johnson This anthology is no bland celebration of bucolic idyll but rather an exploration of everything that the countryside represents to the British For some it means the reintroduction of long lost wildlife such as the red kite or ancient crafts like thatching For others it means jouncing along a green lane in a four wheel drive Range Rover To the Prince of Wales his new town of Poundbury is the countryside while subjects as diverse as crop circles second homes Mad Cow Disease and polytunnels are all flashpoints in the modern debate about what and who the countryside is for Hugely varied by turns funny and provocative this is an essential exploration of a central aspect of our national identity      Birds , 2002      The Stone Curlew Richard Vaughan, Nancy Vaughan Jennings, 2005
