Patsy Diamond thought she had her life and her business dealings under control. She was wrong. Just as Patsy is hoping for calm, chaos erupts and Patsy is forced to make decisions that could cost her everything. The only people Patsy can rely on are her inner circle, her family, and her close friends. But with danger and threats seemingly lurking around every corner, Patsy must take extra care with who she trusts with her secrets. So when Patsy meets handsome stable hand Phillipe Carreaux, she is immediately wary. Can she bring Phillipe into her world, or is it simply too dangerous? With her future on the line, Patsy must think smart if she hopes to hold on to her Diamond reign forever.

Lost Diamond Girls L.K. Hill, Detective Gabe Nichols is ready to start fresh. A new city, a new job, a new life. After what he and Kyra have been through in the past year, they deserve it. His first day on the new job brings a bizarre case in which several victims around the city are targeted. They all have identical names. Detective Cody Oliver has moved from rural small town cop life to the big city. He and Gabe team up for a bizarre case. One that makes little logical sense and brings enemies from the past to the forefront of their lives again. When another victim with the same name goes missing and they realize missing children may be involved, Gabe and Cody race to figure out what clandestine organization is behind the murders. If they don't act fast, more innocent victims may be lost to the light forever.

The Suicide Club and the Rajah's Diamond by Robert Louis Stevenson Robert Louis Stevenson, 1897

The Political Economy of the Kimberley Process Nathan Munier, 2020-09-03 In the late 1990s, the issue of diamonds contributing to conflict began to receive global attention. In response, the Kimberley Process, an international agreement drawn up in 2003, was implemented to reduce the trade of conflict diamonds and provide a way to certify the global diamond trade. This study looks at the political economy of resource-rich states in Africa to understand responses to the Kimberley Process, asking why some African states have higher levels of compliance and cooperation than others. Using cross-country comparisons to explain differing state policies and outcomes, Nathan Munier explores whether domestic private economic actors matter in how international agreements operate. In doing so, he asks why states that regularly ignore international agreements will use scarce resources to raise their level of compliance with the Kimberley Process. Focusing on the domestic political economy of states in contrast to past theories of state responses to international agreements, Munier finds that economic dependence and the preferences of private actors are essential in understanding the variation of state responses to international agreements.
