

UTAH'S CAUCUS SYSTEM

How to get involved in nominating your party's candidate for the general election.

START
HERE

Each party follows this same basic process:

PRECINCT CAUCUS

A caucus is simply a meeting. In this case you (yes, you!) meet with your neighbors of the same party. Here, your neighborhood (or precinct) chooses you (and some of your neighbors) to be state and county delegates who will represent your precinct.

STATE CONVENTION

Party state delegates gather once a year at their party's convention. On even-numbered years, they elect primary candidates for federal office (Congress and Senate) and statewide officials (e.g., governor). On odd-numbered years, they meet to conduct state party business.

STATE DELEGATES

COUNTY DELEGATES

COUNTY CONVENTION

Party county delegates gather once a year at their party's convention. On even-numbered years, they elect primary candidates for state House and Senate seats and for county positions. On odd-numbered years, delegates meet to conduct county party business.

PARTY PRIMARIES

At the primary election, each party holds its own primary, where all party members go to elect the party nominee for all open state, county, state and federal positions.

PRIMARY CANDIDATES

PRIMARY CANDIDATES

GENERAL ELECTION

Here all registered voters elect their representatives from among all party nominees. The winners of this election are declared the newly elected officials.

PARTY NOMINEES

ELECTED OFFICIAL

... And there you have it. In Utah, we elect delegates who select the candidates that we can then vote on. The best part is, YOU can become a delegate and influence this process.
