Housebuilding in Transition Sherman J. Maisel, 2023-11-15 This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1953 Planning, the Market and Private Housebuilding Glen Bramley, Will Bartlett, Christine Lambert, 1995 Planning the market and private housebuilding is a timely new book which analyzes key contemporary issues in the light of the latest research findings and trends in policy and practice The relationship between land use planning and the housebuilding industry in Britain has long been characterized by intense debate and conflicting priorities about land supply The experience of the late 1980s and the early 1990s has made national policy makers and economic analysts aware of the crucial importance of the housing market for the whole economy and has once more put planning in the spotlight At the same time planning itself is undergoing significant changes and has been given a new mission in terms of the environmental agenda which may be in some tension with the needs of the housing economy The artificial boundaries between housing and planning have also been broken down by recent developments linking planning and social housing and stressing the enabling role of housing authorities The authors are based in leading research and teaching centres for planning and housing and they combine expertise in housing policy and finance industrial economics and organization and town The book grapples directly with some of the biggest issues How sluggish is the housebuilding industry in responding to demand How much does planning affect house prices What would happen if we scrapped the Green Belt Do planning policies get implemented Do planning agreements for affordable housing make sense What would happen if mortgage interest tax relief were abolished The book is aimed at interested lay readers those involved professionally in the housing development and planning fields and at students of planning construction housing geography economics social policy and related disciplines While centred on the experience of the UK the authors bring to bear their knowledge of comparative experience and research in a range of other countries including North America and Europe Glen Bramley a specialist on housing and public finance is a Reader in the School for Advanced Urban Studies SAUS at the University of Bristol he was Deputy Director of SAUS for 1990-92 Will Bartlett is a Research Fellow at SAUS having lectured in economics at the universities of Southampton Bristol and Bath Christine Lambert is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Town and Country Planning at the University of the West of England Bristol and she specializes on planning and local government issues The Political Economy of Housing Sila Demirors, 2023-04-12 In The Political Economy of Housing The Case of Turkey Sila Demirors explores the analytical and historical process of how housing a special use value and social relation which is crucial for the social reproduction of labour power becomes an instrument of speculative finance to feed itself While the second part of the book discusses the political economy of housing in Turkey in which housing has been used by the state as both a political project and a macroeconomic tool for the last two decades the first part of the book formulates a methodological and theoretical framework to provide a comprehensive approach for comparative housing research from a Marxist political economy perspective British Housebuilders Fred Wellings,2008-04-15 British Housebuilders is the first comprehensive account of the corporate history of the twentieth century speculative housebuilding industry the firms that supplied those houses and the entrepreneurs who created those firms The transition from the local housebuilders of the 1930s through the regional diversification of the 1960s to the national housebuilders of today is charted via a series of industry league tables The rationale for the growth in national firms is analysed The conventional explanation of economies of scale is rejected instead the stock market is found to play a key role both in facilitating acquisitions and in demanding growth from its constituent companies The supply side analysis also addresses the frequent corporate failures succession issues lack of focus and the 1974 and 1990 recessions have played their part in equal measure British Housebuilders provides the first opportunity to review the evidence drawn from a century of speculative housebuilding it is only with this historical perspective that sound judgements can be made on the corporate role in housebuilding Greenfields, Brownfields and Housing Development David Adams,Craig Watkins,2008-04-15 The location of new housing development has become one of the most intractable controversies of modern times This book provides a powerful critique of the growing tendency to reduce the debate on the development of new housing to a mere choice between greenfield and brownfield locations It calls for full account to be taken of such factors as the structure and organisation of the housebuilding industry supply and demand pressures in the housing market the contested nature of sustainability and the political character of the planning process if a truly effective housing land policy is to be devised Drawing on theories from economics and political science this book will provide an important reference point on the institutional context within which residential development takes place and on the concerns of planning authorities environmentalists housebuilders and their customers in relation to the apparent choice between greenfield and brownfield development Management, Quality and Economics in Building A.
