Food, Agriculture and Social Change Stephen Sherwood, Alberto Arce, Myriam Paredes, 2017-05-22 In recent years food studies scholarship has tended to focus on a number of increasingly abstract largely unquestioned concepts with regard to how capital markets and states organize and operate This has led to a gulf between public policy and people s realities with food as experienced in homes and on the streets Through grounded case studies in seven Latin American countries this book explores how development and social change in food and agriculture are fundamentally experiential contingent and unpredictable In viewing development in food as a socio political material experience the authors find new objects intersubjectivities and associations These reveal a multiplicity of processes effects and affects largely absent in current academic literature and public policy debates In their attention to the contingency and creativity found in households neighbourhoods and social networks as well as at the borders of human nonhuman experience the book explores how people diversely meet their food needs and passions while confronting the region s most pressing social health and environmental concerns
