Writing and the Writer Frank Smith, 2013-11-05 Exploring the relationship between the writer and what he she happens to be writing this text by one of the foremost scholars in the field of literacy and cognition is a unique and original examination of writing as a craft and as a cognitive activity The book is concerned with the physical activity of writing the way the nervous system recruits the muscles to move the pen or manipulate the typewriter It considers the necessary disciplines of writing such as knowledge of the conventions of grammar spelling and punctuation In particular there is a concern with how the skills underlying all these aspects of writing are learned and orchestrated This second edition includes many new insights from the author's significant experience and from recent research providing a framework for thinking about the act of writing in both theoretical and practical ways A completely new chapter on computers and writing is included as well as more about the role of reading in learning to write about learning to write at all ages and about such controversial issues as whether and how genre theory should be taught Written in nontechnical language this text will continue to be accessible and stimulating to a wide range of readers concerned with writing literacy thinking and education Furthermore it has an educational orientation therefore proving relevant and useful to anyone who teaches about writing or endeavors to teach writing

Writing the Social Text Richard Brown, 2017-07-05 During the past decade it has become commonplace to interpret social and cultural reality the very groundwork of the social sciences as linguistic constructions Not only is society viewed as a text but scientific texts themselves are seen as rhetorical constructions This collection of scholarly essays begins with an overview of this emerging field and covers the specific stylistic practices by which social scientists create objective or true representations of society The volume closes with a consideration of the more telling challenges to the rhetorics of the social sciences and how these might be encompassed or overcome Landmark Essays on Writing Across the Curriculum Charles Bazerman, David Russell, 2020-11-25 Rhetoric as a general teaching while preaching locality of action and guidelines for handling that locality has tended from the beginning to serve as a universality It has offered a generalized techne with only limited categories appropriate for all discursive situations at least for those that were not excluded from the realm of rhetoric Nonetheless from its beginnings rhetoric limited its interests to certain activity fields such as law government religion and most important the educators of leaders in these activity fields This collection presents landmarks showing where the Writing Across the Curriculum WAC and Writing in the Disciplines WID movements have gone They have opened up a number of prospects that were impossible to see when rhetoric and composition confined their gaze to relatively few discursive activities This suggests that the rhetorical landscape is becoming more complex and interesting as well as more responsive to life in the complex differentiated societies that have emerged in the last few centuries This volume will reveal to scholars and researchers a range of possibilities for the study of disciplinary discourse and its teaching and suggest to them new prospects for the future and for the better Writing Business Francesca Bargiela-Chiappini, Catherine Nickerson, 2014-06-11 Writing Business Genres Media and Discourses offers an analysis of the genres and functions of written discourse in the business context involving a variety of modes of communication The evolution of new forms of writing is a key focus of this collection and is only partly attributable to the ever increasing application of technology at work Alongside machine mediated texts such as electronic mail and computer generated correspondence the contextualised analyses of both traditional genres such as facsimiles and direct mailing and of lesser studied texts such as invitations for bids contracts business magazines and ceremonial speeches reveal a rich complexity in the forms of communication evolved by organisations and the individuals who work within them in response to the demands of the social organisational and cultural contexts in which they operate This rich textual variation is matched by a discussion of a range of methodological approaches to the development of business writing skills including rhetorical analysis organisational communication analysis social constructionism genre analysis and survey and experimental methods Using authentic data and benefiting from a fresh interdisciplinary approach the volume will be of interest to students and researchers of business communication Language for Specific Purposes LSP English for Specific Purposes ESP and sociolinguistics The Psychology of Writing Ronald T. Kellogg, 1999-08-05 The human ability to render meaning through symbolic media such as art dance music and speech defines in many ways the uniqueness of our species One symbolic medium in particular written expression has aroused increasing interest among researchers across disciplines in areas as diverse as the humanities education and the social sciences because it offers a fascinating window into the processes underlying the creation and enunciation of symbolic representation In The Psychology of Writing cognitive psychologist Ronald T Kellogg reviews and integrates the fast growing multidisciplinary field of composition research a field that seeks to understand how people formulate and express their thoughts with the symbols of written text By examining the production of written text the book fills a large gap in cognitive psychology which until now has focused on speech production comprehension and reading while virtually ignoring how people write Throughout the author masterfully examines the many critical factors that come together during the writing process including writer personality work schedules method of composing and knowledge In providing an important new theoretical framework that enables readers from a wide range of backgrounds to navigate the extensive composition literature the author drives home the profound significance of meaning making as a defining feature of human cognition Kellogg not only draws from the work of leading composition scholars but quotes insights into the writing process proffered by some of the most gifted practitioners of the writing craft including E M Forster John Updike and Samuel Johnson Engaging and lively The Psychology of Writing is the perfect introduction to the subject for students researchers journalists and interested general readers

Beginning Writers in the Zone of Proximal Development Elizabeth Petrick-Steward, 2012-10-12 How do young children bridge the gap between writing a story with pictures and writing with words How children learn to use written words to tell a story is a topic important to both cognitive development and early literacy instruction Using the theoretical framework developed by Vygotsky the behavior of a group of prekindergarten children as they author two consecutive pieces of writing is analyzed The children tell their stories at first with spoken words and pictures As they discuss their work in progress in public conferences they discover how to build on and combine existing skills to produce a new skill telling stories with written words Current descriptive and theoretical perspectives on beginning writing are presented in this volume with a particular focus on Vygotsky's concept of the zone of proximal development a period of sensitivity in which learning advances The proposed mechanism of change is verbal mediation talk among peers and teachers as they discuss work in progress which moves the children through the zone of proximal development An open whole language approach to literacy instruction makes the classroom in this book an ideal arena in which to observe verbal mediation in operation Children are free to question criticize and argue and in the process they collectively advance their developing ability to use written language The work is unique in that the rich and comprehensive data record is reproduced in its entirety More than 400 illustrations of the children's products two books apiece pictured before and after the children's revisions are included along with transcripts of the conferences about each of the pages permitting direct observation of the effects of verbal mediation This dynamic study documents change during a period of time when specific learning is occurring and provides strong support for the value and power of Vygotsky's theoretical framework CSCL, Theory and Practice of an Emerging Paradigm Timothy D. an accessible and thought provoking study of academic writing practices Informed by composition research from the US and academic literacies studies from the UK the book challenges current official discourse on writing as a skill Lillis argues for an approach which sees student writing as social practice The book draws extensively on a three year study with ten non traditional students in higher education and their experience of academic writing Using case study material including literacy history interviews extended discussions with students about their writing of discipline specific essays and extracts from essays Lillis identifies the following as three significant dimensions to academic writing Access to higher education and to its language and literacy representational resources Regulation of meaning making in academic writing Desire for participation in higher education and for choices over ways of meaning in academic writing Student Writing access regulation desire raises questions about why academics write as they do who benefits from such writing which meanings are valued and how on what terms outsiders get to be insiders and at what costs
