Historical Concepts Between Eastern and Western Europe Manfred Hildermeier, 2007 More than a decade after the breakdown of the Soviet Empire and the reunification of Europe historiographies and historical concepts still stood very much apart This book talks about how there were no common efforts for joint interpretations and no attempts to reach a common understanding of central notions and concepts

Beyond Post-communist Studies Terry D. Clark, 2016-07-08 This book makes the case that several East Central European countries have emerged as fully consolidated democracies As such they may be integrated into the mainstream of political science research and not consigned forever to a transitional category encompassing countries that are now fully democracies as well as some that are not democratic at all The author outlines the steps of another transition from post communist studies to political science research He demonstrates how institutionalist or rational choice theories can be applied to the analysis of political processes in the successfully democratized countries and proposes a new research agenda for political scientists studying the region The results of this work can enrich political science as well as our understanding of both democracy and the politics of contemporary Eastern Europe

Nina Wichmann, 2007 This book explores the strategy of the European Union in the democratisation processes of Serbia and Croatia in the years 2000 2005 It argues that the EU intervention turned the democratization processes into Europeanisation processes which featured the promotion of societal participation the regional approach and the conditionality principle as their constitutive elements In examining the EU s choice of actors targeted and analysing the issue areas promoted by its policy the study explores the implementation of concepts of societal participation and challenges the proclamation of civil society promotion being an indispensable part of the EU s democratisation agenda for Serbia and Croatia

The Weakness of Civil Society in Post-Communist Europe Marc Morjé Howard, 2003-03-27 Over a decade has passed since the collapse of communism yet post communist citizens are still far less likely to join voluntary organizations than people from other countries Why do post communist citizens mistrust public organizations What explains this pattern of weak civil society And what does this mean for democracy in the region This engaging study addresses these questions with a provocative argument about the enduring impact of the communist experience on its countries and citizens Howard argues that the experience of mandatory participation in state controlled organizations and vibrant private networks during the communist period combined with the disappointment with post communist developments have left most citizens with a lasting aversion to public activities Howard analyzes the findings from over 30 democratic countries on the World Values Survey and also presents extensive and original evidence from his own research focused on Eastern Germany and Russia From Cold War to Cold Peace? Loek Halman, Peter Ester, Vladimir Rukavishnikov, 2024-01-08 The cross national analyses of Western and Russian political cultures presented in this book are partly based on the 1990 EVS data Another data source comes from surveys that were conducted since the late 1980s by the Department of Social Dynamics of the Institute of Socio Political Research of the Russian Academy of Sciences ISPR RAS This Volume pictures a wide variety of values in the social and political domain and reveals unique insights in Russian culture It makes clear that despite many differences Russian and Westerners have also many things in common as far as basic values are concerned This is the fourth volume in the series The first book is The Individualizing Society 1993 1994 edited by Peter Ester Loek Halman and Ruud de Moor The second book is Values in Western Societies 1995 edited by Ruud de Moor A third book is titled Political Value Change in Western Democracies 1996 and is edited by Loek Halman and Neil Nevitte The Nonprofit Sector in Eastern Europe, Russia, and Central Asia David Horton Smith, Alisa Moldavanova, Svitlana Krasynska, 2018-09-04 The Nonprofit Sector in Eastern Europe Russia and Central Asia EERCA edited by David Horton Smith Alisa V Moldavanova and Svitlana Krasynska uniquely provides a research overview of the nonprofit sector and nonprofit organizations in eleven former Soviet republics with each central chapter written by local experts Such chapters with our editorial introductions present up to date versions of works previously published in EERCA native languages With a Foreword by Susan Rose Ackerman Yale University introductory and concluding chapters also explain the editors theoretical approach setting the whole volume in several relevant larger intellectual contexts and summarize briefly the gist of the book The many post Soviet countries show much variety in their current situation ranging from democratic to totalitarian regimes

The New Politics of European Civil Society Ulrike Liebert, Hans-Jörg Trenz, 2011 This multi disciplinary book captures the evolving practices of European civil society that stretch across the local national European and global realm It consolidates existing research and reviews its conceptual normative and empirical analytical foundations Rethinking Civil Society in Transition Ester Sigillò, 2025-10-01 This book illustrates the results of ethnographical research designed to shed light on the notion of civil society in a context characterized by the transformation of power relations Such transformation is given by shifting resources renewed local and international opportunities and a general reframing of goals and objectives The academic literature has usually relied on a substantialist understanding of the notion of civil society referring to the latter as something that exists a priori or does something. This volume relies instead on a relational approach where civil society becomes the name we give to a host of complex interactions in which local associations are involved in a time of reconfiguration of power relations. Building on this approach, this volume analyses the relational dynamics affecting Tunisian associations after the fall of the authoritarian regime in 2011 and their implications for the changing political order. Findings show two main interrelated trends: the nationwide professionalization of local associations and the localized networking strategies of various socio-political categories crossing the associational sector. The book shows how their members understand the standardization of local associations as a strategy to have guaranteed access to the public sphere and therefore to influence the changing political order.

European Neighbourhood through Civil Society Networks? James Wesley Scott, Ilkka Liikanen, 2013-10-31. This book pursues a dual objective: on the one hand, it focuses on the actual and potential roles of civil society in developing new forms of political, economic and socio-cultural cooperation between the European Union and its neighbours. On the other hand, through this investigation of civil society networks, we will contribute to debate on the EU's role as promoter of greater regional co-operation. The rationale for this collection is thus defined by changing political relationships between the 27 member European Union and countries in its immediate vicinity. These transformations include the ongoing but by no means straightforward process of Turkey's EU membership, an evolving and complex partnership with Russia, and the development of deeper political, economic and social relationships with many other neighbouring countries. More specifically, the work presented here involves comparative studies of how the EU is perceived by civil society actors both within and outside the EU. We ask whether the EU's promotion of cross-border co-operation, although the European Neighbourhood Policy is empowering civil society within member states and in neighbouring countries such as Russia, Moldova, Turkey and Morocco. This book was based on a special issue of Journal of European Integration.

Postsocialism C.M. Hann, 2003-09-01. Social scientists did not predict the collapse of the socialist system in 1989-91 and their attempts to explain postsocialism have not been comprehensive. Economic disintegration and political instability have been documented, but the deeper causes have often gone unnoticed. Consequently, the solutions proffered, such as the promotion of non-governmental organisations as the foundations of civil society, have so far brought little success. Postsocialism presents for the first time the anthropological responses to these problems, which are all grounded in intensive fieldwork. The authors demonstrate that even when local conditions are specific, the view from below illuminates macro-trends. A wide range of topics are discussed, including the role of social and cultural capital in determining the winners of rural decollectivization, the devaluation of blue-collar labour, the position of Gypsies, the viability of multicultural models in situations of religious differences and ethnic violence, new patterns of consumption in China, the revival of rituals and the healing of socialist trauma.

Europe's Balkan Dilemma Adam Fagan, 2012-11-05. Through the intervention of the European Union the lives of people living in Bosnia Herzegovina Serbia and Kosovo have been transformed beyond recognition From the perspective of the Western Balkans today the EU looks and acts like a development agency with a broad brief and deep pockets Yet until the end of the twentieth century external relations and foreign policy were minor aspects of EU activity How and why has the role of the EU changed so dramatically and what does this reveal about the future development of the Balkan states Europe s Balkan Dilemma offers the first comprehensive analysis of the impact of EU assistance and intervention in Bosnia Herzegovina Serbia and Kosovo Adam Fagan places the fundamental question of what has been achieved through the EU s increased involvement in the region in the context of the EU s ambitions in global security and conflict management beyond the Balkan states Europe s Balkan Dilemma will be a vital resource not only for students of International Relations and European Studies but also for anyone involved in helping to equip this tumultuous region for the next phase in its eventful history

Governance and European Civil Society Acar Kutay,2014-02-24 This book provides a critical analysis of the European Union s approach to governance focusing on the way in which civil society is incorporated within the EU decision making process and arguing that it is not conducive to the democratisation of EU governance Using a governmentality approach Kutay demonstrates that civic actors are not incorporated into EU decision making processes as they are rather they are formed manipulated and guided by political programming The author explains how this acts to prescribe and construct particular types of subjectivities thereby limiting and constraining the types of participation that might emerge as part of European civil society and the process of political participation Governance and European Civil Society will be of interest to students and scholars of European Union politics global governance civil society and democracy Central and East European studies and political and international theory

Encyclopedia of Sociology Edgar F. Borgatta,Rhonda J. V. Montgomery,2000 Online version of the 5 v encyclopedia published in 2000

Civil Society in the Baltic Sea Region Norbert Götz,2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2003 The Baltic Sea region offers exceptionally rich material for the discussion of civil society This is because it has witnessed the erosion of communist regimes the crisis of the welfare state the increasing importance of new social movements and the shift from a centralist paradigm to one oriented towards networks This engaging book focuses on the phenomena and prospects for civil society in north eastern Europe which have had a major impact on political and scholarly debates since 1989 Nineteen experts from the region provide a comprehensive and comparative account of the history the present state and the perspectives of civil society in the Baltic Sea area The reader will learn that civil society should not only be seen in opposition to the state and that it has a major impact on current developments of European integration
